King George and Timur. When He Saw the Hangman.
Stranger Than Alice.
Ladies of Afghanistan.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

(Copyright 1928.)

KING GEORGE makes Plymouth "a city," and its citizens are delighted. Plymouth, represented in Parliament by Lady Astor, has been "a town" for 400 years.

THE King's action won't change Plymouth as kings used to change towns in old days.

For instance, when Tamerlane moved from his "Green City" to Samarkand, he made that place a city in earnest, tearing down houses and rebuilding, building walls, avenues, baths, and palaces, as Genghis Khan had done at least 150 years before him, and as Alexander the Great also had done years earlier. It was at Samarkand that Alexander killed his best friend, Clytus.

For more information about the differences between King George and Prince Timur, or, Tamerlane, read "Tamerlane," by Harold Lamb, recently published.

HICKMAN, who kidnaped and killed a little girl in California, was hanged yesterday. The hangman did his work thoroughly. Reporters for months have written about Hickman's "iron nerve."

Young gentlemen of the Hickman type will please notice that when you face the hangman, nerve is not as useful as when you face a poor terrified little girl.

Hickman collapsed when HIS turn came to die and was dragged to the scaffold. It is poor consolation for the family of this vile murderer's victim to know that if such a place as hell exists young Hickman is there beyond the reach of any reprieve.

WHEN President Coolidge saw the original manuscript of Alice in Wonderland, sold for $150,000, he saw nothing more wonderful or exciting than his own career.

The Dormouse, Red Queen, Mock Turtle, Mad Hatter, Walrus Carpenter and all the rest of Alice's friends in the "Wonderland" and "The Looking Glass" are no more queer than politicians with whom Coolidge has dealt.

And the President's own rise from a little farmhouse in Vermont to the White House in Washington is more remarkable than anything Alice ever heard of.

KING AMANULLAH and his queen of Afghanistan visited England and decided that freedom for women was a good idea.

The Afghan queen went home wearing short skirts, silk stockings, and hats like half of a dinner pail. King Amanullah said to his lady subjects, "You can do the same if you like."

BUT Afghanistan at heart is as barbarous as the orang-outang's cage in the circus. And the King counted without his high priest.

The high priest said what was good enough for Mohammed was good enough for King Amanullah, and if he spoiled ladies too much, they would expect to go to paradise with the men and nobody would be able to escape his wife.

THE King replied by chopping off the heads of Abdur, the high priest, and three associate priests.

But a violent revolution has broken out. Afghans want their women submissive and veiled.

HUMAN beings dislike the thought of freedom when they are not used to it. Nothing is unhappier than a canary out of its cage. Many black slaves in our Civil War resented being set free, which meant being compelled to support themselves.

DR. ECKENER, captain of the great Zeppelin, as fine a man as has visited this country in many a year, saw Herbert Hoover yesterday and thanked him "for saving thousands in Germany from starvation after war, children especially."

That tatement of fact will influence many votes.

GOV. SMITH paraded through Chicago streets yesterday, smiling at everybody, waving his brown derby hat, shaking hands good naturedly until his arm ached. If cheers and yells and enthusiasm mean anything, there are many votes for Gov. Smith in Chicago.

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE BLUMENTHAL give $1,000,000 to the Metropolitan Museum, the income to be used as trustees choose, the principal to be spent only for works of art.

The pocket that produced that particular m[illegible]n has many other millions.

Perhaps in his next gift Mr. Blumenthal will say to the museum trustees: "Spend this money to encourage American artists. But don't buy until you see something good. This is not an age of art but one of industry, and the human race only does one thing well at a time. But art will come back, then use this money to buy from Americans, as the old Medici used the money they made to encourage Italian artists—Leonardo, Raphael, Michelangelo and the rest."

Merely buying old pictures is an interesting fad for a rich man that likes to think himself "cultured." But it doesn't encourage art, which means CREATION.

ON LONG FLIGHT

MARTHA BEVINS

Since 7:38 o'clock this morning, a long plane droning monotonously over Teterboro airport, Hasbrouck Heights, N. J., has been carrying Mrs. Martha Bevins, just 18, on her attempt to break the solo endurance flight record for women. Mrs. Bevins, Fort Worth (Ky.) girl, is one of a half dozen women in this country licensed to fly passengers. Her flight is official.

SUN-TELEGRAPH PRAISED IN REPRODUCING PAINTINGS

What does Pittsburgh's art world think of the color gravure section that will accompany tomorrow's Sunday Sun-Telegraph—the section that will consist entirely of the outstanding paintings of the International exhibition opened Thursday at Carnegie Institute?

These paintings were reproduced by the Sun-Telegraph in their natural colors. Advance copies of this section were shown to representative critics. Their opinions tell the story:

EVERETT WARNER, painter, professor, Carnegie Institute of Technology—"The color reproductions of the International exhibit are very interesting and fine. It seems that the delicate shades are more perceptible in the shadows, which is quite an improvement."

MISS NANCY WALTER, painter—"I like the color pictures very much. This International exhibit has the kind of pictures that bring you in often, and the Sun-Telegraph's reproductions are very nice."

RUSSELL T. HYDE, painter, instructor, Carnegie Institute of Technology—"Very good. Laura Knight's 'Whimsical Walker' and Dod Proctor's 'Portrait of a Girl' are especially interesting. I believe everyone will like them."

NORWOOD ROBESCH, art instructor, Carnegie Institute of Technology—"While I haven't seen the International exhibit yet, I think these color pictures are quite fine. The 'Portrait of a Girl' seems splendid. As they stand in the color gravure, they are interesting and stimulating."

ROY MILTON, art instructor, Carnegie Institute of Technology—"I believe these are the best color pictures I've ever seen, and the International pictures are of especial interest. I like all of the color reproductions very well. The reproductions of paintings in your newspaper seems a very fine thing for the community."

EMANUEL DeCOLAS, artist—"The color pictures are very stimulating, and should create additional interest in painting in the Pittsburgh district. It is very remarkable when a picture like Mr. Flint's 'Panel for a Modern Room' can be reproduced in a newspaper."

WILLIAM HYATT, manager, J. Gillespie Company—"Splendid! I have watched your color section from the start and noted without difficulty the constant improvement. After one month you have done something that no other newspaper, to my knowledge, ever did. I like particularly Miss Knight's 'Whimsical Walker' and I like the judgment you showed in giving it the entire first page of this section. Miss Knight has always leaned to ample color and your reproduction does her justice. It is a work that will find favor with the people as well as with the art world."

CHRIST WALTER, president of Associated Artists of Pittsburgh—"You have done a good job. You have made it possible for the art lover to add something notable to his collection. The International was a splendid, timely opportunity for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph to emphasize the advantages of natural colors on papers and I would have been disappointed had you passed it by. If I had to select one favorite from the varied assortment you have chosen I'd lean to Flint's 'Panel for a Modern Room.' It is a good example of excellent composition. His color blend is one of the most unusual and at the same time soothing that I have come across."

CHARLES WUNDERLY, Jr., of Wunderly Brothers—"I haven't seen the originals of these reproductions yet, but I can see now that it won't be absolutely necessary. This

FORNEY TO BE HEARD, INDICTED

Alfred W. Forney, "king of the slot machine racketeers," will be called before the Allegheny county grand jury that is investigating graft. He will be indicted. But if he makes a clean breast of all that he knows of official corruption the court will be asked to show lenience.

District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner so announced on his return today from Philadelphia, where he conferred yesterday with District Attorney Monaghan in regard to a similar crusade that Monaghan is conducting against bribe-taking public officials in the eastern city.

PUBLIC DEMAND

Gardner was informed that a movement has been set afoot by public-spirited citizens who feared Forney would not be called to have him brought before the grand jury through a petition for the issuance of a writ of habeas corpus and testifandum. The district attorney said that he had already anticipated such procedure by arranging himself to have Forney, a federal prisoner, brought into court.

Gardner said he had intended to call Forney at the outset, but had delayed because the racketeer's counsel, Hiram D. Hirsh, told him the prisoner was in a bitter frame of mind and in bad shape physically, suffering from "nerves." Gardner has postponed calling him, he said, in the hope that he might conclude, on reflection, that he would do best to disclose everything he knows, and also to allow him a chance to recover his composure.

MUST FACE JURIES

Gardner said Hirsh had told him Forney did not want to testify now, but, regardless of the racketeer's wishes, the district attorney declared, he will have to face the grand jury, and also a petit jury. It depends on his attitude towards the grand jury whether or not mercy will be recommended in the event of a conviction.

COMPANIONATE BRIDE'S SUICIDE IS FOILED

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 20.—True to her threat to attempt suicide because her companionate marriage was a failure, Mrs. Barbara Elliott, 24, of New York, today attempted to jump from the Delaware River bridge to her death.

The quick action of a bridge patrolman saved the woman.

JAWORSKI DELIVERY FEARED

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 20.—Allegheny county detectives, armed with machine guns and sawed-off shotguns, were ready today to spill blood in any attempt to free Paul Jaworski, their leader, on his trip back to Pittsburgh. Chief George Murren, with Detectives Michael McDermott, Joseph Bodner and John Geisler, are in Cleveland today, where it is expected the Ohio murder charges against Jaworski will be dropped so that he may be brought to Pennsylvania, and executed, as he already has been convicted of murder.

JAWORSKI

The return of Jaworski may be held up until Monday, but no chances will be taken by the local officers in permitting the escape of the prisoner, even though there is a mob attack by the pals of the prisoner.

Murren refused to divulge his plans for the return of the prisoner, who 14 months ago shot his way out of the Allegheny county jail, fearing that an attempt might be made by his pals in numerous robberies to effect his release.

Murren has been in Cleveland pending the actual transfer of the prisoner to the Allegheny county authorities and he had the detectives bring with them a riot gun and two machine guns. Other detectives will go part way to meet the party on the return trip.

Walks Out On Birthday; Missing

George R. Simming's seventy-sixth birthday was yesterday, so his sister, Mrs. John H. Holmes, with whom he lives at 545 North Fairmount avenue, East End, baked a birthday cake for a private celebration.

In mid-afternoon Simmings said he was going for a short walk. He left the house. He hasn't returned.

Two Guggenheim Babes Fall To Death

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Two baby grandsons of the late Benjamin Guggenheim, copper magnate, playing on the roof of the Hotel Surrey in East Seventy-sixth street, fell 13 stories to their death yesterday afternoon.

Terrence, 4, accidentally upset his brother, Benjamin, 13 months, over a wall as he attempted to jump into his mother's lap, and both fell on another building.

Their mother, Mrs. Milton Waldman, of New York and London, youngest daughter of Mr. Guggenheim, who was lost on the Titanic, fainted and was prostrated several hours. Mr. Waldman, a writer and former New York newspaperman, is assistant editor of the London Mercury.

MURDER CHARGE AGAINST GIRL IN FIRE

A charge of murder was lodged today against Marie Hecker, 16 years old yesterday, who confessed setting fire to a house in East McKeesport, in which 3-year-old Claire Peterson was burned to death Tuesday night. She was committed to jail by Coroner W. J. McGregor, to await the inquest.

The girl admits, authorities say, that she set fire to the home of her aunt, Mrs. Mary Hecker, then walked out with her baby after locking the doors, but she insists "I don't know why." The Peterson child had been left at the Hecker home by her parents, who went on a visit.

ECKENER ASKED TO ROCHESTER

ROCHESTER, Pa., Oct. 20.—The Chamber of Commerce, through its secretary, Gordon W. Oyler, has wired an invitation to Dr. Hugo Eckener at Lakehurst to fly the Graf Zeppelin over Beaver county next week on its trip through the Middle West.

This county ranks third industrially in the state and sixth in the United States and has a hundred thousand population.

Rockefeller, Jr., Convinces "Coolidge"

TONKERS, N. Y., Oct. 20.—A traffic policeman yesterday ordered a car to pull over and demanded the motorist's name.

"John D. Rockefeller, Jr.," came the answer.

"Well," proceeded the policeman, "I'm President Coolidge. Show your license."

The motorist obeyed and received an apology. Mr. Rockefeller then demanded that he be given a summons if he had violated the law. He did not get one.

CAR TAKING INJURED BOY TO HOSPITAL OVERTURNS

WARREN, Pa., Oct. 20.—An automobile making a dash from Tiona to Warren with Leon Crockett, 8, to save the lad from bleeding to death overturned while going at high speed. Another machine was commandeered to complete the trip. The lad fell on a broken milk bottle while playing at school and severed an artery. Others in the car were the boy's mother, Mrs. P. C. Jordan, who was driving, and Miss Ruth Mitchell, school teacher. They escaped with minor bruises.

SCIENTISTS EXAMINE BRAIN; SLAYER DIED LIKE VICTIM

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Oct. 20.—(INS.)—University of California scientists today completed a post-mortem examination of the body of William Edward Hickman.

A few hours after he had gone to his death on the San Quentin gallows, Hickman's body was turned over to the scientists for brain tests.

The examination was made at the written request of William Thomas Hickman, father of the boy slayer.

The examination revealed two outstanding things:

That Hickman, as far as a post-mortem can determine, was normal, and that no signs of insanity were present.

That Hickman's neck was not broken when he was hanged yesterday, and that he strangled to death, just as he throttled little Marian Parker to death 10 months ago.

The report of the examiners indicated that there was nothing abnormal about the endocrine glands—the internal organs of secretion which are held by scientists to contribute toward mental affliction. The brain was found to be unusually large.

Hickman's insanity defense included reports of medical men which said his physical condition indicated insanity or lack of mental balance.

MAD DOG BITES POLICE CHIEF

Bitten by a mad dog, Chief of Police Daniel Rosemeier, of Bellevue, is taking treatments for prevention of serious results.

Chief Rosemeier corralled a stray dog in a swing on the front porch of E. L. Mason, 163 Lincoln avenue, Bellevue, after he had been summoned to the home. As he seized the animal it bit him on the hand. He chloroformed the dog at the borough police station. Later its head was sent to Philadelphia and was reported to have had rabies.

Two other dogs which bit children in Orchard avenue and Kendall avenue were examined by a veterinary and found not to have rabies.

Pistol at Temple, Woman Shot On Shoulder

UNIONTOWN, Oct. 20.—Mrs. Anna Gorman, of near Point Marion, pressed a revolver close to her right temple, fired and wounded herself in the shoulder.

Mrs. Gorman was rushed to the Uniontown Hospital, where her condition is regarded as fair. Family worries are blamed for the shooting.

SANDS, BANKER, FALLS DEAD AT CAMP

Stricken with a heart attack, Lawrence E. Sands, 63, president of the First National Bank of Pittsburgh, died last night at the Guyasuta Boy Scout reservation near Aspinwall, where he had gone to attend a dinner at which a plan for raising scout funds was to be discussed.

SANDS

Boy Scout leaders applied first aid treatment until Dr. J. L. Marshall, of Aspinwall, arrived and pronounced Mr. Sands dead.

Shortly after his arrival at the camp, Mr. Sands, with Alexander Reed, trust officer of the Fidelity Title and Trust Company, and John A. Price, an advertising representative, had gone to inspect a scout cabin. He was descending a slight grade when he collapsed. His son, John W. Sands, who was at another part of the reservation, was summoned.

WEST VIRGINIAN

Born in Fairmont, W. Va., Mr. Sands began his banking career in 1876 when he went to work for his father, who was cashier of the First National Bank of Fairmont. In 1880 he became identified with the National Bank of West Virginia, in Wheeling, and he was connected with that institution 14 years. He then became cashier of the Exchange Bank of Wheeling. He served as a vice president and also as president of that bank before leaving it in 1914.

Mr. Sands came here in 1914 and assumed the duties of president of the reorganized First National Bank of Pittsburgh. He had remained in that position since that time.

Mr. Sands was active in Boy Scout work and had done much to help their cause. He was president of the county organization here.

IN MANY COMPANIES

In addition to being president of the First National Bank, Mr. Sands was a director of the Peoples Savings and Trust Company.

TECH FAVORED TO BEAT W. & J. ON GRID TODAY

By JESS CARVER.

Warriors of the gridiron from the North, East and West will invade local gridirons today when Allegheny plays the Pitt Panthers in the Stadium, Washington and Jefferson opposes Carnegie Tech at Forbes Field, and Loyola University of Baltimore clashes with the Dukes of Duquesne on the Bluff field this afternoon.

The feature contest is that between the Skibos and Presidents, it marking the first major engagement of the Tartans this season. Wally Steffen's Tech combination hopes to establish itself in national football circles by setting down Andy Kerr's Prexies, for never in its grid history has the Plaid school boasted such fine material and potential strength. W. & J., humiliated by its defeat at the hands of the Layden Dukes last week, will be fighting at its best in an effort to regain lost prestige as well as to be the first team of the season to set down the undefeated Plaid eleven.

TECH FAVORITE

With a weakened team, the fighting Kerrmen are not expected to be able to turn their appointed task, and, as a result, Carnegie reigns a favorite to keep its clean slate.

SLIGHT HOPE SEA FLIER LANDED AT LONELY SPOT

LONDON, Oct. 20.—Almost all hope had been exhausted today that Lieutenant Commander H. C. MacDonald had landed on some part of the British Isles.

The former Naval officer started from Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, Wednesday in a Gypsy Moth airplane with the intention of flying across the Atlantic. Only once on the long trip was his airplane sighted, and that was about 700 miles east of Harbor Grace.

Stiff breezes were blowing from mid-ocean to the Irish Coast about the time that MacDonald was scheduled to arrive on his adventurous flight and some optimistic friends believed it possible that he might have landed either in Ireland or the northern tip of Scotland.

RUM PROBE DEFENDANTS SCORE VICTORY

Mother Wasn't Angry With "Joe" After All

AMPUTATED

Joseph Tragone, 12, lies today in Monongahela Memorial Hospital following amputation of his left leg, crushed by a freight car. He feared then his mother would scold him when she learned of his misfortune.

DEMONSTRATES

Walter Baranowski was with "Joe" when he was injured. Walter is showing how his little companion tried to crawl underneath the car when the heavy steel wheel crushed his leg, necessitating an immediate operation.

MOURN ABSENCE

"Joe's" schoolmates mourn his loss deeply. Several young boys returning to school saw smoke coming from the freight yards at East Monongahela and decided to investigate before the "last bell." They cut across the tracks, but found only a smoking bearing box on one of the cars. The bell rang. They scurried for school, clambering over and under cars. Joe was caught under one of the cars as it was being shifted. Above are Kenneth Lust, Walter Baranowski and John Palli.

Glass That Flattens Hardest Bullets

CITY DETECTIVES TRY IT

To test "bullet-proof" glass planned for use in new city patrol wagons and for several riot motorcycles, city detectives in Central Police Station range sent bullet after bullet into this square plate. The police's most powerful rifles, riot guns and service pistols failed to penetrate. Here, Detectives Guy Dailey, Serg. Brubach and William McCready fire away—uselessly.

AD BOOK GOUGERS DEFIANT

"The Chronological Biographical Sketch of Herbert Hoover," the vehicle by which the mysterious Hoover Pittsburgh Republican Progressive League was reaping a rich harvest from a long list of advertisers, is to be off the press next Tuesday, according to the printers, providing all the advertising copy is received.

This despite the orders of Police Superintendent Peter P. Walsh to arrest the 10 advertising solicitors who for several weeks have been making a drive for advertising copy for the book. J. Edward Garlitz, treasurer of the League and a clerk in Mayor Kline's office, said the solicitors had ceased work last Saturday, but at the printing plant in Market street where the book is to be issued, it was said the final advertising copy is still coming in.

Walter J. Lloyd, former police magistrate and official of the department of labor and industry, the only known associate of Garlitz, is out of town and is not expected back until next Tuesday, when the book is to be completed. So far the police have been unable to catch up with the advertising solicitors despite Superintendent Walsh's orders for their arrest.

SAME PEOPLE HIT IN PGH. AND PHILA. GRAFT PROBES

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—District Attorney John Monaghan and Samuel H. Gardner, district attorney of Allegheny county, entered into a general agreement yesterday to co-operate in the conduct of the investigations of bootlegging and police corruption which they are directing.

"I find, in talking over the situation with Mr. Monaghan," said Mr. Gardner after a two-hour conference, "that the investigation which he is conducting here with the aid of the grand jury, and the probe which I am conducting with the aid of the grand jury of Allegheny county not only run along the same lines, but in some instances strike the same people.

"We are both going after bootleggers of alcohol, whisky and beer, and we are both seeking evidence of police protection of illegal traffic. Under the circumstances there is every reason why the two grand juries and the two prosecutors of the state's two largest cities should assist one another."

25,000 MOTORISTS DAILY RENEW AUTO LICENSES

HARRISBURG, Oct. 20.—(A.P.)—Some 25,000 motorists are returning their applications for 1929 automobile licenses each day, Benjamin G. Eynon, registrar of the Bureau of Motor Vehicles, announces. A total of 1,724,472 applications has been mailed out by the department and the annual relicense rush has begun with an early spurt. Mr. Eynon warned that motorists who have failed to receive their applications should give the mails an opportunity to shoulder the burden rather than begin writing letters immediately. He indicated that all the applications should reach their destination by November 1.

BOYS' CAVALRY TROOP INCLUDES LADS OF 12

LOCK HAVEN, Pa., Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Sixty-three boys, 12 to 17, were organized into a junior cavalry troop under the auspices of Troop F, One Hundred and Third Pennsylvania Cavalry, by Capt. Edward T. Miller, commander of the troop. The boys, uniformed, will be trained to take the place of their seniors in the organization when the opportunity offers.

Fewer Chickens, More Turks, For Holiday

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—The Department of Agriculture forecasts there will be more cranberry sauce this Thanksgiving than in 1927.

The prediction was made indirectly by the announcement that turkeys would be 4 per cent more plentiful than in 1927, and that their quality had not diminished. A large increase of production has been noted, the statement said, on the Pacific Coast.

Along with the bullish report on turkeys went a statement about young chickens, the estimate being made that the number on farms October 1 was 10 per cent below last year.

SEEK SLOT CASH IN PROBE

County detectives were abroad today with subpenas for 62 witnesses who were expected to add to the graft-probing grand jury's knowledge of slot machines, baseball pools and liquor concessions in the city and county.

The grand jury, following its usual custom, did not sit today. It will resume sessions Monday.

While the witnesses were rounded up, Assistant District Attorney Andrew T. Park scanned the return sheets of justices and aldermen for new leads on the disposition of money taken from slot machines seized by raiding constables. Yesterday an estimate of $35,000 of such money was traced to a large question mark.

Constables for Justice of the Peace W. L. Baker, of Bellevue, seized 343 slot machines since March 10, Park's analysis of the "squires'" records showed. It was estimated that seized machines average $100 in contents. The Quarter Sessions Court, which has supervision over the justices, was kept in total ignorance of these seizures, Park said.

Besides Baker, there were examined Justice of the Peace E. M. Cox, of Munhall, and Constable E. V. Stokes. Questioning of these men on slot machine raids took up most of the session, and only seven other witnesses were called.

Two of these seven were summoned in a further attempt to get at the bottom of whatever graft resides in police towing of automobiles to garages holding city concessions. They were M. Lemon, of the Auto Guarantee Corporation, East End Trust Building, and Wade C. Brandt, a garage proprietor, of West View.

Miners Denounce Hatless, Silent on Short Skirt

MINERSVILLE, Pa., Oct. 20.—(AP.)—A blow at the practice of young men going hatless is aimed by District No. 9 of the United Mine Workers, but the miners shy away from a commitment on girls' short skirts.

The delegates attending the biennial convention adopted a resolution favoring the wearing of hats by young and old, to build up what was called "a badly bent" hat-making industry. The practice of going bareheaded, the resolution said, had thrown thousands of persons out of work.

After the passage of the resolution, a delegate asked the convention's stand on the short skirt, alleging that its abbreviated length had put a crimp in the normal output of the nation's mills. No action was taken.

STUDENTS RIOT TO VOTE

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 20.—(AP.)—As a protest against being barred from voting in the coming national elections, 1,500 undergraduates of Princeton University last night paraded through downtown streets and tore down two political banners, one a Smith and one a Hoover emblem.

Police charged the crowd, attempting to arrest those who tore down the banners, but were prevented by other students from taking anyone into custody.

When the students recently were denied the right to register on the ground that they were not residents of the city, a boycott was threatened, but merchants report this has not been put into effect.

Jeweler Is Held in Theft

A. J. Kwit, jewelry store proprietor, of 4419 Butler street, was held for court on a charge of receiving stolen goods by Magistrate John W. Orie in Central Police Court this morning. Mrs. T. J. Holleran, 227 Twenty-eighth street, testified that a valuable violin stolen from her home by John Otis, 26, and Sylvester Manz, 25, was recovered in Kwit's jewelry store.

Kwit was arrested following a hearing Friday before Magistrate Orie during which Otis and Manz were charged in eight informations with entering a building and larceny. Following Mrs. Holleran's testimony at that hearing that her violin was recovered in Kwit's store, Magistrate Orie ordered Kwit's arrest.

Witnesses at today's hearing, in addition to Mrs. Holleran, included City Detectives Frank B. Malone and Thomas Flavin. At Friday's hearing Mrs. Holleran had testified that Detective Malone asked her if you would drop prosecution of her case against Otis and Manz if she got the violin back. Mrs. Holleran repeated her charges today. Detective Malone, who was ordered to appear at today's hearing, following the woman's testimony, denied Mrs. Holleran's assertions.

on the eve of their fight with Allegheny College. The Pittites are also still suffering from the smart of the lashing administered them by Rodgers' Mountaineers last week. It may be that four or even five regular varsity men will be missing from the lineup. Allegheny has a chance to win, and if it does, it will not without first being rather clawed up.

Elmer Layden has his Duquesne machine on edge for its tilt with Loyola. Following its splendid accomplishment of last week, the Duke team has been kept working steadily for this contest with the Easterners. Layden will have the added advantage today of being able to use freshmen on its team, and he has some choice material in the yearling squad. He was not permitted to use them last week.

DUKES CRIPPLED

The Bluffites are handicapped by the loss of Capt. Donnelli and Burns, halfback star, who are out with injuries, but it is expected that good reserve material will overcome this unfortunate state of circumstance.

Loyola is here with the idea of turning back the team that made itself heard across the nation last week, and therefore will be a dangerous opponent from the outset.

RUM PROBE VICTORY WON BY ACCUSED

The order of Federal Judge R. M. Gibson yesterday directing United States Attorney John D. Meyer to furnish bills of particulars upon the overt acts alleged in the Federal grand jury booze conspiracy indictments, was a victory for the defendants, of whom 122 have entered pleas of "not guilty." There are 166 defendants, many prominent politicians and police officers.

Many of those who entered pleas had petitioned the court to have the government attorney be more specific in the accusations in order to permit them to prepare to answer the allegations, which, the inidetment sets forth, covers three years.

COURT'S OPINION

Judge Gibson in an opinion, said:

"An examination of the overt acts set forth in the various indictments discloses the fact that in many instances such overt acts are set out in very general language and frequently in an obscure way.

"Many overt acts are described in such a way as to give no definite information to the defendants, or to enable them to prepare their defense in connection therewith."

"For example, in one of the indictments certain of the defendants are charged with transporting, selling and possessing a large quantity of intoxicating liquor between September 1, 1925, and June 7, 1928. The only allegation of place is the city of Pittsburgh and county of Allegheny. In another charge of an overt act, two of the defendants are alleged to have had a conversation at a certain time and place. The substance of the conversation is not given, nor is anything given sufficient to identify the conversation as an overt act. Such is necessary when added to the unlawful agreement to constitute the complete offense of conspiracy under the act.

NAMES NOT GIVEN

"In another charge of overt acts, certain police officials are charged with supervising and sanctioning places of business where intoxicating liquor was sold in some cases, and in refusing to allow others in the same locality to conduct like operations. The names of those operating under such sanction are not set forth.

"In another of the alleged overt acts a police officer, during two years, was charged with knowing and permitting 'certain dealings in concessions for the unlawful traffic in intoxicating liquor by various persons in the city of Pittsburgh.' No specific dates are given, nor are the names of any such persons permitted such occessions set forth."

Attorney Meyer is directed to file the bills of particulars on or before October 31.

Weather Conditions.

High pressure, centered over the Central valleys, covers most of the country east of the Rocky Mountains, and, as a result, fair weather mostly with clear skies prevail. The rains during the last 24 hours were limited to the Lake region, New England and along the Atlantic coast from New England to Florida.

Rising barometer over the states east of the Mississippi caused a drop in temperature over that section, but there was no frost reported except in Indiana, Illinois, Iowa and Missouri. It is colder, also, over the border states west of the lakes, and over the Canadian Northwest.

TASK RUSHED AT LAKEHURST

Before the Graf Zeppelin can take off from Lakehurst, N. J., next Thursday for its projected tour of prominent cities, workmen will have had to complete the task of recovering its damaged portside stabilizer. Here is the giant fin, showing the steel framework after the tattered covering had been torn away.

ZEPPELIN WILL BE HERE WEDNESDAY OR THURSDAY

Inte nations news service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20. — Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the Graf Zeppelin, was to leave here this afternoon by train for Akron, O., to confer with officials of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, American manufacturers of dirigibles.

He will then go to Chicago and will return to Lakehurst, N. J., by next Tuesday, he said, and will take off in the Zeppelin for East St. Louis, Ill., about 5 or 5:30 a. m., Wednesday.

Dr. Eckener added that Henry Ford might be invited either to take the trip to East St. Louis, or one over such mid-western cities as Chicago, Detroit and Cleveland, which will be taken after resting the Zeppelin at Scott Field overnight.

Pittsburgh will be visited either on the outgoing or return trip. If the westbound trip is over the Pittsburgh route, the big airship should reach here Wednesday morning.

"We plan to return to Lakehurst by next Thursday," he continued, "to refuel for our return flight to Germany. We intend at present to start back by Saturday."

Guard Officer Dies In Seat of Plane

CLEVELAND, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Lieut. Harry Robertson, 29, of Elyria, O., died yesterday in an Ohio National Guard airplane flying from Akron to Cleveland. Robertson, a member of the One Hundred and Twelfth Observation Squadron, Ohio National Guard, was stricken with heart disease while in the observer's seat of the plane and was dead by the time the pilot, Lieut. G. M. Cummins, could land the plane at the local airport.

Robertson was salesmanager for the Lincoln Motor Company, in the Ohio, Indiana and Michigan district with headquarters here.

BARON LAUDS PILOT; NEW PROPELLER NEEDED

By BARON GUNTHER VON HUNEFELD

Aboard Airplane Europa on Flight Around World via Tokio

(Copyright, 1928, by Universal Service)

TOKIO, Oct. 20.—My pilot, Charles Lindner, certainly saved us from injury and possible death when he maneuvered the Europa around Hakone Mountains and made an excellent landing on uncertain ground.

Our fuel was rapidly diminishing, due to our long flight from Shanghai. We did not realize how tired we were after the hard trip and our forced landing, until we arrived at our hotel.

A further inspection of the plane reveals that a new propeller is required.

The Japanese minister of communications tendered us an official luncheon yesterday and addressed his guests, saying:

"I believe the southern air route is the only route practicable and commercially profitable from Europe. We should eliminate the crossing of Siam, where there are numerous dangers to airmen. India offers an excellent airport, and another is needed between India and Japan.

"The trans-Siberian flight is not feasible on account of atmospheric conditions."

I notice the advanced facilities at the airfields of Japan.

The newspaper Asahi last night gave a formal Japanese dinner for the purpose of furthering interest in the advancement of aviation.

SMITH FLAYS G. O. P.; WINDS UP IN WEST

By GEORGE R. HOLMES.
International News Service.

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—The Brown derby waves for the last time today west of the Alleghenies.

Heartened by the magnificent reception given him in Chicago, Gov. Al Smith starts eastward today, via Indiana, to make one of his usual whirlwind finishes to a campaign. Two weeks from tonight, in his own New York, he will make his closing bid for the presidency.

Gov. Smith closed his speaking campaign in the West in Chicago last night with the most slashing attack he has yet made on the Republican record. He hit everything from farm relief to water power, and from the oil scandals to prohibition.

Eight thousand madly cheering Chicagoans, all that could possibly shove, jam or push their way into the old armory in Michigan avenue, applauded him in every thrust. Thousands of others battled with the police to get in.

RIPS BORAH

The Governor was in his best speaking form. Sarcastically he sailed into Senator William E. Borah, whom the Republicans put on the Smith trail for follow-up speeches on the present trip.

Borah, he said, had lost the progessiveness he once had and has become merely a politician more interested in Republican success than in the principles he once espoused.

Sarcastically, he read extracts from Borah's Senate speeches berating his own party for neglecting the farm program. Satirically he read extracts from other speeches of Borah's in which the Idahoan roundly attacked Herbert Hoover. And satirically again he would inquire whether Borah was right eight years ago or wrether he was right now in going about the country praising Hoover and espousing his candidacy.

"Senator Borah did not always think so much about Mr. Hoover," said Gov. Smith. "He had a little different idea of him when he was food administrator than he has today, when he is the candidate of his party. Let's go into the record on it."

Then he read from Borah's Senate speeches accusing Mr. Hoover of gross mismanagement of the food administration, of being "unfit" to direct the handling of $100,000,000 for food relief in Europe immediately after the war, and of "violating the most fundamental priciples of the constitution."

"This to my way of thinking," said Gov. Smith, is a polite way calling a man a lawbreaker. And with this performance of only nine years ago, Senator Borah is now traveling through the country today proclaiming that Hoover is the greatest man in the United States and ought to be its president for the next four years.

"He is telling the farming communities that during the war and reconstruction period, Candidate Hoover was responsible for keeping up the prices of farm products.

BOTH CAN'T BE RIGHT

"Well, I saw a cablegram from Mr. Hoover addressed to one of the farm leaders in which he said he was keeping them down. Both cannot be right.

"However, I feel perfectly satisfied after my trip through the country that the American farmer is not taking the Senator very seriously.

"He posed for too many years as the great advance agent of progress, a great progressive from the wide open spaces of the West, talking for everything that is high and lofty, but the evidence today clearly indicate he is more interested in the success of his party than in the vindication of any principle he ever espoused."

Gov. Smith poked a lot of fun at Senator Borah's "conscience fund" which he started in Washington last spring to repay Harry F. Sinclair the $260,000 that went into the Republican treasury out of the Continental Oil deal. He said Borah got $1.35.

Gov. Smith continued:

"The record of the present administration is a guarantee of what may be expected of the next."

In satirical vein, then, he would take up the Republican short coming one by one, and repeat the text.

He told again of the oil leases, stressing particularly the Salt Creek lease, renewed with Harry F. Sinclair last January by Dr. Hubert Work, then Secretary of the Interior and now directing the Hoover campaign, which has just been declared invalid by the attorney general.

"And the record of the present administration," he mocked, "is a guarantee of what may be expected of the next."

He declared the friends of public ownership and development of water power could expect nothing in the next four years if Hoover is elected "because what you got the last four you will get these four."

The Republican record on prohibition, he said, was one of "double-dealing, double-crossing, trying to be wet with the wets and dry with the drys, and meanwhile surrounded on all sides by official corruption and official bribery such as no arm of the public service in this country has ever seen or realized.

"The Republican candidate," he said, "says it must be worked out 'constructively.' What does this mean?

"If Mr. Hoover has a plan," he said, "he owes it to the American people to explain it to them."

The New York Governor repeated his own "prescription" for dealing with prohibition—amendment of both the Volstead Act and the Eighteenth Amendment so as to allow those states that wanted to, be wet to be wet without, however, any return of the saloon.

The speech came as the climax of a day which saw such a celebration in the loop as Chicago has not witnessed since the Armistice. Estimates of the numbers of people who turned out to see Gov. Smith in the parade ran all the way in the local newspapers from 250,000 to 1,000,000.

Vote Cheat Held in Lottery

Carmen Bevilacqua, county employe, found guilty of election law violations last year, yesterday was held in $1,000 bail by Magistrate A. D. Brandon in Morals Court, accused of being one of the heads of a Hill district lottery.

Bevilacqua, police say, admitted being employed in the test bureau of the county Public Works Department, although employes of the bureau say that he no longer is employed by the county.

Inspector James N. Hoey arrested Bevilacqua Tuesday after a search of several days. A week previous police had raided a disorderly house in Fullerton street and confiscated lottery tickets.

It was testified that Bevilacqua called frequently at the house for the stubs and paid the writers 25 per cent of what they turned in. Bevilacqua denied the charge yesterday, but was held for further investigation.

Zak's District for Smith, He Declares

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.

FRANK J. ZAK, Pittsburgh, Republican member of the Pennsylvania State Legislature, yesterday wrote James W. Gerard, treasurer of the Democratic National Committee, that he would vote for Gov. Alfred E. Smith and that his district "would be 100 per cent for the Democratic presidential nominee."

"I admire the principle and attitude Smith has taken in this campaign," the letter said.

Zak was elected to the legislature in 1926 from the Twenty-second Ward, North Side, running against Daniel Malie. Zak apparently had been defeated when the returning board made their report, but a recount showed that he had been cheated out of the election and he was given the nomination by the local judges. It was in this election that witnesses testified many of Zak's votes had been thrown into a sewer.

Phila. Vice Case Near Jury

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 20.—The case of Matthew Patterson, ward leader, and Charles Schoenleber, police captain, charged with extortion and bribery in the investigation of Philadelphia's racketeers and corrupt policemen, was to go to the jury today.

In his summation, Assistant District Attorney Lemuel B. Schofield termed Patterson "a coward ready to forsake his police captain and neighbor for years, in an effort to avoid conviction.

Three days and a night, five hours of which were spent by counsel for both sides in their summations, were spent in preparing the case for the jurors. At 10 o'clock today Judge James Gay Gordon will deliver his charge to the jury and within a short time the jury is expected to read its decision as to whether the men were guilty of plotting and accepting "protection money" from more than a dozen saloonkeepers in Capt. Schoenleber's district. This verdict will be looked upon as a barometer of what other police captains and politicians may expect if arranged on similar charges.

Defense Counsel John R. K. Scott and Edward Kelly bitterly attacked the testimony of witnesses as the words of men who themselves were law violators. That and intimations that the prosecuting attorney's office has promised immunity to the star witnesses, were the chief points stressed by defense counsel.

CIVIC CLUB LOAN FIGHT GOES ON, COUNCIL TOLD

Council and the Civic Club of Allegheny County yesterday reached an impasse on counter proposals calling for the retraction of statements relating to the club's opposition to a proposed amendment to the state constitution which would increase the city's borrowing power from 7 to 10 per cent of the assessed valuation.

That amendment and a number of others will be submitted to voters at the election November 6.

Robert Garland, chairman of the Councilmanic Finance Committee, successfully offered a resolution last Monday asking the Civic Club to withdraw its printed opposition to the amendment as a "gross and apparently deliberate misstatement of the law and the fact and will unquestionably have the effect of misleading and deceiving some of the voters."

Maurice R. Scharff, president of the Civic Club, yesterday countered by presenting to Council a resolution re-affirming the club's opposition and asking Council to reconsider Garland's resolution in its reference to "misstatement."

President James F. Malone vainly sought to have Scharff recover from newspapermen copies of the latest resolution of the Civic Club.

Garland refused to retract his language and called his critics "stiff-necked."

"You ought to go along with the amendment," Garland told Scharff. "We will have it passed anyway. You know if Pittsburgh and Philadelphia go together it will pass in spite of your opposition," Garland said.

Malone explained that Garland's resolution received the unanimous support of Council when it was passed last Monday.

Garland had amplified his resolution by stating that the Civic Club based its opposition to increasing the city's borrowing power on the claim that the 10 per cent privilege was now possible if approved by 60 per cent of the voters at an election.

INCREASE LIMITED

He pointed out that the city could take advantage of the additional 3 per cent above the present 7 per cent only to finance city-owned public utilities that were self-supporting.

Garland said the city had only one utility, the water works, and that whether it is a self-supporting feature is in the hands of the courts to decide.

In his reply yesterday Scharff declared the Civic Club, while resenting the language of Council's resolution, reconsidered its action and re-affirmed its opposition to the amendment in question.

His reply further stated that two other proposed amendments would make it unnecessary to increase the city's debt limit to 10 per cent.

One of those amendments, he said, provides for assessments against all property benefited by a given improvement instead of the present restriction of assessing only the abutting property.

The other amendment provides for the Metropolitan Plan which would "greatly increase the facilities for carrying out public improvements in Pittsburgh."

Scharff said his conferees in the Civic Club took into consideration the fact that the Supreme Court had not handed down a ruling in a pending case testing the city's limitations regarding the 10 per cent debt margin and that in the club's interpretation of the law Council's opinion, as expressed in the Garland resolution, was "erroneous."

Scharff submitted a written statement, part of which follows:

"In exercising our rights as citizens to oppose the amendment this committee pointed out that under Article IX, Section 15, of the present Constitution, the City of Pittsburgh might, in case of an overwhelming necessity create such a huge debt as 10 per cent of the total value of the citizens' property, but that a three-fifths vote of the electors was requisite thereto.

"The advisability of requiring a three-fifths vote instead of a bare majority of one should be obvious to all in view of the recent ballot-box stuffing cases.

"It may fairly be inferred from those disclosures that the will of an actual majority can be thwarted by the expert manipulation of a few predatory politicians.

"The pay-rollers can be wielded effectively."

Garland attacked the club for omitting the public utility phase of the present debt limit and charged the Club with setting itself higher than the Supreme Court in so interpreting the present law. He denied that the proposed Metropolitan of improvements and declared the reverse was true as the plan would add extra expense and burdens on Pittsburgh.

Garland said the Civic Club would restrict the city's borrowing power but would not hesitate to appear before Council to urge additional expenditures by the acquisitions of more playgrounds and comfort stations.

Charles A. Waldschmidt, city solicitor, explained that leading lawyers and bond experts sustained the city's interpretation of the 10 per cent debt limit in its relation to city owned public utilities.

Francis S. Guthrie, member of the Club, was asked to comment on the discussion, but said he would have to leave because he "had other things to do besides to attend to civic business. I have been cross-examined before by Council and I don't want any more of it," he said.

INDIANA, Pa., Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Two hunting accidents are reported here.

Wilbur Stephens, 17, of Penn Run, was seriously wounded when his gray cap was mistaken for a squirrel by Peter Ferrana, Indiana. The youth was shot in the left arm, face and head. He was taken to the Indiana Hospital.

Harry Fields, Indiana, lost part of his right foot, when his shotgun was accidentally discharged.

OIL CITY, Pa., Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Robert Fitzpatrick, of Oil City received six pellets in his forehead and a badly lacreated left thumb while hunting in Forest County. He said his gun was discharged while he was cleaning it.

NINE ARRESTED IN ALLEGED RUM RING

Nine alleged members of a whisky ring will be arraigned before the United States commissioner today, charged with conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws and conspiracy to defraud the government through use of counterfeit strip stamps. Investigators of the prohibition department caused the arrest of the nine Thursday and late yesterday.

According to Federal agents, J. R. Austin, of Library, one of the alleged members, already is under indictment on another conspiracy charge and is scheduled to be tried next month. The others are Dominic and Ralph Scanga, of Pearl street; Dan Alella, of South Winebiddle street; William Davis, of 1135 Illinois avenue, Dormont; Irwin Americus, of 219 Roup street; David Sirotta, of 5634 Melvin street; Frank Miller, of 254 Lombard street, and William M. COOLIDGE AUTO MENACED BY TROLLEY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—President Coolidge returned to Washington last night from Fredericksburg, Va., where he delivered the principal address yesterday at the dedication of the Fredericksburg and Spottsylvania county battlefield memorial.

A motorcycle patrolman who was preceding the President on the trip from the railroad station to the White House escaped injury by jumping from his machine when a trolley car bore down upon him almost in front of the executive mansion. The officer had given the signal to stop, but apparently the motorman did not understand and continued toward the motorcycle which was in a direct line with the automobile in which the President was riding. The motorman put on his brakes when almost upon the patrolman who leaped from his machine. The motorcycle was struck and slightly damaged. The President's car was almost 50 yards away and he was in no danger.

The stretch, which has already been opened to accommodate traffic, will serve about 10,000 people and connects Dayton with state highway Route 85. The department also announced that a seven-mile section of concrete between Zelienople and Pittsburgh, on Perry highway, U. S. Route 19, will be opened to traffic on October 30.

COUNTY EMPLOYES RECORDED

From this day on, if you are a county employe, you won't be given your pay envelope unless the picture in the paymasters' file is that of you who stand before the wicket. The county is rushing its task of photographing all of its force of workers. Here, Miss Jessie Bender meets the photographer.

'DRY' SENATOR DRUNK, COPELAND CHARGES

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 20.—(AP.)—The spectacle of a professedly dry Senator becoming so intoxicated at a dinner of senators in Washington "that he fell from his chair" was recounted by Senator Royal S. Copeland, of New York, in an address before the Tompkins County Democratic Committee here yesterday.

In a vigorous arraignment of what he called "Republican hypocrisy" the New York Senator bitterly assailed the dry opposition to the Democratic ticket and declared that "all the dry Senators there are in Washington wouldn't crowd a taxicab." In describing the Senatorial dinner which he attended at the Capital Senator Copeland declared that he "never saw so much liquor" before on such an occasion.

Himself a Methodist, the Senator declared: "I would as soon see a Catholic Pope in the White House as a Methodist Pope."

He branded as "a devilish lie" charges that Gov. Smith "gets drunk."

Yank Men to Polls By Back of Neck, Women Urged

BLOOMSBURG, Pa., Oct. 20.—(AP.)—"See that your men vote even if you have to take them to the polls by the back of the neck," Mrs. Worthington Scranton, Republican National Committee woman from Pennsylvania, told a Hoover-Curtis rally of women here.

Mrs. Scranton said women in the state are thinking more in terms of the qualifications of the two nominees for the presidency than along party lines. "Herbert Hover stands today as an ideal to the country," she said.

POSTMASTER SUSPENDED IN 'WHISPERING' CAMPAIGN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Another flock of "whispering campaign" charges descended on the Capital yesterday and the net result was the suspension of the postmaster and the assistant postmaster at Lansford, Pa., pending investigation of charges that stamps on anti-Hoover material were canceled in such a way that the place of origin could not be determined.

Those relieved of duty were Robert H. Strickler and Mrs. Bessie Burns Strickler, postmaster and assistant, respectively, and in announcing his action the Postmaster General said that "inspectors had reported that quantities of circulars were delivered to the postoffice by the chauffeur of the representative in Congress from the Lansford district.

"He did not name Everett Kent, the representative, and Mr. Kent later denied that his automobile had been used to carry political matter of the type described."

The inspectors who investigated reported that a cork had been used for canceling the stamps instead of the machine or stamp which would show from where the circulars had been mailed.

The postoffice department would make no comment on the subject matter of the circular except that it contained an attack on Herbert Hoover on account of his Quaker faith.

CLERKS ADMIT MAIL

Both the postmaster and the assistant postmaster denied that the circulars had been deposited for mailing at the office. Clerks in the office, after first maintaining absolute ignorance of the matter, finally admitted under questioning of having faced several bundles of them, and of having witnessed other clerks canceling the stamps with a cork cut to the shape of a four-leafed clover.

One clerk stated that the postmaster was present during the proceedings and declared that the mail had been delivered by Congressman Kent's chauffeur.

ZAIN JUDGES CHOOSING THIRD LIST OF AD WINNERS

AWARDS TO GO NEXT WEEK TO 300 MORE

Tomorrow—and the prize winners of the third period of the Zain Ad Writing Contest will be known.

For the judges are nearing the end of their task of selecting the best of the prize winning ads for the period that terminated last Wednesday night, and by the time The Sunday Sun-Telegraph is ready to be put on the press, the final list of winners will have been prepared.

Then Monday, in The Sun-Telegraph, there will be printed some of the prize-winning ads. And then will come the receiving of the prizes.

MORE ADS WANTED

But in the meanwhile, the next important thing is that every ad writer continue in the fourth period, with ads, and ads, and ads. The judges offer a suggestion to the contestants that they consider necessary. And that is—the product's the thing.

Visit the stores, study the merchandise that is to be the subject of the ads, learn its merits and possibilities; get as complete knowledge as possible, and then write.

For the ads are judged principally on the value of the idea contained. The actual writing technique is of lesser importance.

TIME UP WEDNESDAY

The fourth period ends next Wednesday night at midnight. For the winner, there will be one $100 and 300 other substantial prizes. And then—there is always ahead the big $1,000 prize, the pot of gold at the foot of the rainbow.

But speaking of prizes, here are the novice writers winning the books of bread tickets given by the Haller Baking Company for the second period:

Beulah C. Clark, 250 Ashland avenue, Mt. Lebanon; Mrs. W. M. Henry, 115 Edgecliff drive, Rosslyn Farms, Carnegie; William P. Kennedy, 355 Atwood street; Harry Beck, 45 Albert street; Irma C. Smith, 728 Wills street.

They wrote—and won. If you would win—write.

Some of the merchandising concerns about whom interesting ideas and "copy" may be constructed are here included.

For instance, electric refrigeration. Take the Kelvinator as the topic of an ad, and see just what you can learn about this marvelous and practical instrument in the home. This machine may be seen in the Kelvinator display rooms, 205 North Highland avenue, or at any Kelvinator dealer's place. And you have considered the value of electric refrigeration in winter?

SEASONAL SUGGESTIONS

Or take a typical subject of the season in Max Azen's furs, at 705 Penn avenue. In almost any group of women today the talk will turn to the comfort of the fur coat, the neck piece, or the fur as a decorative feature. Here lies the opportunity for countless cleverly conceived ads. But see the stock and understand it, then write your bit.

And another season subject may be found in shoes, as exemplified by Laird's, at 622 Liberty avenue—215 Oliver avenue. Shoes for the children, the maiden, the school youth, the older folks—shoes for father and mother and everybody becomes interesting because they interest everybody. See the shoes, and you'll find ample inspiration for your ads.

Or turn to banking! The kind of banking of which the Union Savings Bank is an example. The bank where "Savings Are Safe" occupies quarters in the Frick Building, at Fifth avenue and Grant street. It serves all ages, all conditions, all peoples. It is the place where men, by patronage, can turn dreams into realities. Visit this great institution, see its advantages, and then write.

Write each ad on a separate sheet of paper, which should be at least as large as a postal card, and preferably commercial letter size. Put your name and address on the back of each sheet and also on the flap of the envelope in which you mail them. SEND THE ADS TO THE ZAIN AD-WRITING TEST, CARE OF THE PITTSBURGH SUN-TELEGRAPH, PITTSBURGH, PA.

JUDGE ZAIN WRITERS

EXPERT AD MEN

Three of Pittsburgh's expert advertising men sat as judges until late yesterday on the Zain ads, turned in during the third period, which came to a close last Wednesday night. Watch the Sunday Sun-Telegraph tomorrow for the list of winners. The expert copy men are, left to right: William Cohen, president, The William Cohen Company; Alvin I. Gardner, account manager, Frank Presbrey Co., and H. Vincent Drayne, account executive, Ketchum MacLeod & Grove, advertising agency.

Rules for Sun-Telegraph-Zain $15,000 Ad Test

1—$15,000 in cash and prizes distributed over seven weeks. Grand prize, $1,000. Grand weekly prize, $100. Five prizes each week for best ads written for each concern participating—195 each week, 1,170 prizes in all.

2—$1,000 for best ad submitted during entire campaign. Winners to be selected by committee of Pittsburgh advertising men and women.

3—Ads for fourth period must be received by midnight, October 24, at the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa. Ads arriving after that time will be automatically entered for the next period, and so on.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, just a healing, soothing vegetable laxative mixed with olive oil.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take them every night to keep right. Try them. 15c, 30c, 60c.

WEAK WOMAN GETS STRENGTH

By Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Lawrence, Mass.—"For years I suffered and would sweat cold and feel as if I would faint. At such times I could neither walk nor sit down with comfort and my work is sitting down all day. I heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound through friends I work with, and I began to take it as a tonic six months ago. I am much improved. I recommend the Vegetable Compound and you may use this letter as a testimonial."—Mrs. Marie Machera, 169 Oak Street, Lawrence, Mass.

HOOVER 3 TO 1 IN JEFFERSON COUNTY POLL

Jefferson county is added to the Hoover column upon completing its quota of straw votes in the poll of Pennsylvania conducted by The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

This rural county, upstate from Allegheny county, favors the Republican candidate over Gov. Alfred E. Smith on a ratio better than 3-to-1, complete tabulation of its return indicates.

It shows that the county will increase its Republican strength this year over 1924.

TOPS COOLIDGE RATIO

President Coolidge received 67 per cent of the total vote cast. Hoover is given 78 per cent of the votes in the poll.

The vote in 1924 was divided as follows: Coolidge 10,673, Davis 2,664, LaFollette 2,618. The straw vote totals are: Hoover 950, 850 men and 100 women; Smith 297, 279 men and 18 women.

Party defections favor Smith, with 147 Coolidge voters, six of them women, now favoring Smith, while 74 Davis voters, including eight women, are shifting to Hoover.

LAFOLLETTE VOTE SMITH'S

Smith is winning the bulk of the LaFollette vote in that county, on a ratio of 60 to Smith and 16 to Hoover.

The totals include 52 Hoover voters, 44 men and 8 women, and 36 Smith voters, 30 men and 6 women, who did not vote in 1924.

The total of votes in the Pennsylvania poll, conducted in connection with the nation-wide canvass by the Hearst papers, reaches 93,884 with the latest returns, with Hoover leading by 26,204.

The standing is: Hoover 60,044, 48,643 men and 11,401 women; Smith 33,840, 26,225 men and 7,615 women. This vote in 1924 was divided as follows: Coolidge 64,939, 52,435 men and 12,504 women; Davis 10,168, 8,592 men and 1,576 women; LaFollette 5,581; not voting 13,196.

CITY COUNCILMEN SHOW DOUBT IN METRO PLAN QUIZ

Advantages expected to accrue to Pittsburgh through the adoption of the Metropolitan plan as provided in an amendment to the State Constitution, to be submitted to voters at the election November 6, were before members of Council today, outlined yesterday by Dr. Thomas H. Reed, research director of the Metropolitan Commission.

Council took no action and gave no indication that any would be taken in the way of indorsing the proposal, but some of the members viewed the plan with misgivings, judging from their questions.

Pressed by James F. Malone, president of Council, Dr. Reed admitted the principal advantages of the Metropolitan plan would be to give Pittsburgh a "fictious" rating in the United States census and to allay fears of adjoining boroughs and townships of annexation to Pittsburgh.

SEES CITY "ANNEXED"

P. J. McArdle developed that Pittsburgh actually would be "annexed" by the boroughs and townships under the proposed amendment. The name of Pittsburgh could be changed and what is now one of the largest cities of the nation cut up into two or more smaller cities, he said.

Dr. Reed, although agreeing that it was possibile, denied that the commission had any such intention.

Dr. Reed said that the Metropolitan plan would result in a Pittsburgh of 1,500,000 population making it the fourth largest city in the United States.

The old spirit of opposition and suspicion on the part of outlying districts would no longer exist because the residents there would have no future aggression to fear. Such a greater Pittsburgh is impossible through direct annexation, Dr. Reed said.

"Voluntary annexation has added to Pittsburgh in the 20 years since the annexation of Allegheny an average of a half a square mile each year, or not enough to keep pace with the natural movement of population toward the suburbs," he said.

Under the plan the name of Pittsburgh would be applied to the entire territory of Allegheny county and the federated city would have ample powers to deal with problems of planning, transportation, recreation, health, sanitation and charities.

HOLD LOCAL RIGHTS

For all other purposes, probably 90 per cent of the cities, boroughs and townships would preserve their independent rights of local government.

Outright annexation would result in the newly acquired districts immediately demanding the extension of all forms of city services.

Under the Metropolitan plan the treasury would not be exposed to "raids" by the outlying districts for local improvements. Those include sewers, street, police and fire protection, garbage collection and street lighting.

"The Metropolitan plan would provide for local financing of local improvements and the local supplying of local services," Dr. Reed declared.

Full details of the plan would be set forth in a charter which would be submitted to the people and would not become effective until it had the approval of a majority of the votes of the county and a two to one majority of the 122 municipal units.

Replying to Malone, the speaker declared that Pittsburgh would appear in the national census reports as credited with the present 700,000 population while Metropolitan Pittsburgh would be credited with 1,500,000. Other municipalities in Allegheny county would also be credited with their respective populations.

"Then we would be only 'kidding' the rest of the world," Malone said.

"BOROUGHS FAVORED"

McArdle declared the Metropolitan plan did not give the relative amount of consideration to Pittsburgh that it gave to the smaller municipalities and pointed out that Pittsburgh could be outvoted by the adjoining communities should tests arise.

Dr. Reed contended there was no possibility of such a contingency, as the adjoining communities lacked Pittsburgh's solidarity.

McArdle observed, satirically, that Pittsburgh would gain another advantage in being credited with farm products as the records would show 270,000 acres in cultivation.

TRAFFIC LIGHTS HELD MISUSED

Wrong methods of control have contributed greatly to the seriousness of the traffic problem in large cities, according to the American Engineering administrative council, in session at the William Penn Hotel. This conclusion was reached after the members of the council had spent all of yesterday discussing street traffic signs, signals and markings.

There is at present a tendency to install traffic control signals indiscriminately and to use them unnecessarily, according to a report based on a year survey of traffic problems in more than 100 large cities.

Thirty engineering groups were represented at the meeting at which Arthur W. Berresford of New York, presided.

The Art Society opened its season in Carnegie Music Hall last night with a song recital by Katherine Meisle, contralto of the Chicago Opera Company, and Ifor Thomas, Welsh tenor. It was fine to note the increased membership in the society, for the year's program is the most brilliant offered in many years.

The first concert, however, fell somewhat short of its promise. The program was long, and often dull, full of trite airs, and a little vaudeville, which pleased the audience enormously.

Ifor Thomas is a singer without distinction. A flare for unwritten high notes, and a very unsteady voice immediately detract from whatever art he may possess, although his spirit did help the Handel air and three very rich Welsh songs. He sang the Duke's first song from "Rigoletto," as encore.

Katherine Meisle's work is well known here, and yearly there is distinct improvement in her musicianship. Her voice is a very beautiful contralto, and while she rarely touches the depths of our hearts, she can imbue songs as the uninspired "Samson and Delilah" air with real character. In her enthusiasm, the singer must be careful of occasional very unmusical tones that seem almost foreign to her voice.

Her encores were Purcell's "There's Not a Swain," and a bravura rendition, in contralto key, of "Una voce poca fa" from Rossini's "Barber of Seville." Also one of Kathleen Manning's Parisian Sketches, and Armstrong Gibb's "Five Eyes" found favor.

Solon Alberti played very discreet accompaniments.

DAKOTAN WRITES SPROUL OF CURE; BAPTISM SUNDAY

The services of Evangelist John Sproul being conducted in Pittsburgh have found results in far away Grand Forks, N. D., according to a letter read at last night's services in Glory Barn, Carson street.

Mrs. John Hoser, confined to a sanitarium in the North Dakota city, has written to Evangelist Sproul, informing him that she has been cured through prayers offered in Pittsburgh. She said she would soon be leaving the hospital.

She had heard a radio sermon from Pittsburgh and had asked the Evangelist to pray for her.

Approximately 3,000 persons were present last night when Mr. Sproul again told the story of how he had been healed through attending services in the Sheraden Gospel Tabernacle. They also heard him recite how he had lost his voice through being gassed in France and how he had become an evangelist after being cured.

The evangelist conducted a healing service at the close of his story.

Mrs. Mary Filmore, 36, of 210 Valonia street, who said she had been deaf for 16 years, last night declared that after "going forward" she heard the evangelist call to her as she was leaving the platform.

Tonight there will be services in the barn and the sermon will be broadcast by radio station WJAS.

Tomorrow afternoon there will be baptismal services and another service tomorrow night.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Miss Anna Boggs Kerr Becomes Engaged to Dr. Harmeier

SO many interesting things have been happening here this fall that they have quite overcome any tendency to think of the season as one of "falling leaf and fading tree." The weather has been most consistently warm and sunny, certainly a boon to the bride who has planned a big wedding and would most emphatically like to have the sun shine on her.

I have a bit of news now, though, that is not about a wedding but a promise of one. That is the engagement of Anna Boggs Kerr, daughter of the Rev. Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr, of Amberson avenue, to Dr. John Watson Harmeier, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Harmeier, of Reynolds street. So far as I know, no date has been set for the wedding. Dr. Kerr, you know, is pastor of the Shadyside Presbyterian Church.

GETTING away from the subject of weddings and engagements for a moment, however, I want to tell you about the "footlight supper" which Mrs. James B. Cullum, Jr., is going to give tonight. The guests will be limited to members of the cast of "The Whole Town's Talking," which is to be presented Tuesday night by the Sewickley Valley Hospital Cot Club in Guildhall, Sewickley. The supper will be given on the stage of the hall right after the rehearsal is over.

Speaking of this production, perhaps you would be interested to know just who the ushers are going to be. They will include David C. Chaplin, James Crossan Chaplin III, Ferdinand W. Bailey, James W. Arrott III, Ira Fitch Brainard, John Lloyd Wigton, Charles R. Arrott, Gilbert S. Rafferty and James Todd.

ONE of the weddings scheduled for today is that of Lois Ann Watt, daughter of the Charles Montgomery Watts, of Thomas boulevard, and Charles Nelson Higgins, of Glenshaw. They will be married at 5:30 o'clock in Calvary Episcopal Church and afterwards there will be a reception in the Pittsburgh Field Club. Alice Taylor is going to be the maid of honor and the bridesmaids will be Mr. Higgins' sister, Katherine; Margaret O'Donovan, Katherine Meyers and Hope Brenner, of Evanston, Ill.

Mr. Higgins will have Ned P. Zeth, of Greensburg, for his best man and the ushers will include Sanford P. Stallworth, Charles E. Robinson, John A. Dimling, of Pittsburgh; C. Wilson Kile, of Philadelphia, and Theodore R. Russell, of Phillipsburg, Pa.

ONE of our locals folks who has been traveling abroad for a couple of months, is back in the United States again, I understand. Mrs. Lawrence Litchfield, of the William Pitt Apartments, arrived in New York on the Homeric on Thursday after touring through England and France.

WASN'T that an interesting tea that Mrs. George Pearson, of Howe street, gave yesterday afternoon in the Twentieth Century Club for her daughter, Georgia Parsons? You may have been wondering whether or not Georgia is a bud. She will not be one of the debutantes, I understand. She and her mother have been in Europe since her graduation in June from Smith.

Assisting Mrs. Pearson at the tea were Mrs. William S. Foster, Mrs. Wesley Gould Carr, Dr. Cora Helen Coolidge, Mrs. David Wilson Kuhn, Mrs. Alfred N. Keith, Mrs. William E. McKelvy, Mrs. Taylor Allderdice, Miss Pauline H. Stagg and Mrs. Pitt O. Heasley.

And assisting Gorgia were Barbara Ewing, Priscilla Hall, Louise Schleiter, Jane McEldowney, Ellen McClay and Mary Carroll.

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM H. HOCHBERG, of Verona road, Rosedale, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Clara Belle Hochberg, and Oliver A. The bride wore white satin embroidered with rhinestones, with a wreath of orange blossoms in her hair. She carried delphinium and pink roses. Miss Hazel Hochberg, as her sister's maid of honor, appeared in pink chiffon and carried pink roses. Wilma Hochberg, another sister, was flower girl, and Edward W. Jordan, was his brother's best man. A dinner in the Alcoma Country Club followed the ceremony. After November 15, Mr. and Mrs. Jordan will be at home in Maple avenue, Rosedale.

Frank West was his brother's best man and the ushers included Paul Garvin, Edwin Gruener, Parke Marshall and Joseph West. Miss Mary Smith sang. Mr. and Mrs. West are motoring in the East and upon their return will be at home in North Canal street.

MISS ELIZABETH ZEIGLER, of Bartlett street, has been the house guest of her cousin, Mrs. Charles H. Gillespie, of New York, for the last week. Before returning home, Miss Zeigler will spend the week-end at Wellesley and will attend the Army-Harvard game today. She will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Teege, of Cambridge.

INSTITUTE BUYS DERAIN'S PRIZE WINNING 'STILL LIFE'

Derain's painting, "Still Life," awarded first prize in the twenty-seventh international, has been acquired by the Department of Fine Arts for the permanent collection at Carnegie Institute, according to Homer Saint-Gaudens, director of fine arts. In commenting on the purchase of the Derain canvas, Mr. Saint-Gaudens said:

"Dorain received first prize on the unanimous vote of the jury, establishing the unaqualified opinion on the part of the judges, that the painting was the outstanding canvas in the exhibition.

"This is in accord with Derain's position, which for many years has been that of the leader of those French painters who have sought to keep their art in step with the march of social progress.

"The purchase marks a departure in the policy of the trustees of Carnegie Institute toward acquiring what depends for its repute on the judgment of the day rather than what is backed by the tradition of yesterday; a policy which, after all, is distinctly needed in a gallery that hopes, as the years go by, to set forth a representation of chronological art.

"In pursuing this policy the Carnegie Institute is carrying on the wishes of Mr. Carnegie who desired that the institute should not purchase old masters but paintings of merit by contemporary artists, who, in the years to come, will be old masters."

The painting was purchased through the Patron's Art Fund which was established in 1922 for the purpose of adding contemporary paintings to the permanent collection.

Since 1922 21 paintings have been purchased and placed in the permanent collection.

The subscribers to the fund are as follows: Edward H. Bindley, George W. Crawford, Mrs. William N. Frew, Howard Heinz, Miss Mary L. Jackson, George Lauder, Willis F. McCook, Andrew W. Mellon, R. B. ONCE FAMOUS OPERA STAR, SUICIDE; BITTER IN NOTE

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Mrs. Isabelle Grant, member of a Louisville family and an opera star in Europe 20 years ago, who died yesterday of self-administered poison, had pawned her fur coat to pay for the hotel room in which she took the poison.

Her death brought to an end a search by the police which started Tuesday when it was reported the woman had disappeared from her room at the Y. W. C. A. Hotel, where she had been staying while seeking an audition before officials of the Chicago Civic Opera Company.

The audition had been granted for Tuesday, but Mrs. Grant, known to opera officials as Mme. Ago'n failed to appear.

In her room at the hotel police found a letter which ended:

"The end of an opera star. My blood be upon America for her treatment of the daughter of Kentucky pioneers."

Mrs. Grant was a native of Louisville and the daughter of Mrs. J. C. Applegate, who resides there.

Her operatic career started when she was only five years old. At that time she appeared in her first concert and several years later, Walter Damrosch sent her to Mme. Orgeni, noted European teacher. Still later, Mrs. Grant had studied under Julia Hauser at Dresden.

In 1901, she became mezzo soprano of the Stadt Theater in Cologne and assumed the stage name, Phadrig Ago'n. Then came the war and her fame dimmed. Her husband was killed during the war.

Mrs. Grant returned last Christmas to visit her mother and sister, Miss Julia Applegate, in Louisville.

She recently came to Chicago to seek work with the Chicago Civic Opera Company, but became ill and was unable to appear for the audition.

LOUISVILLE, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Mrs. Isabelle Grant, whose death is reported in Chicago, was known in Louisville as Belle Applegate. Arriving here from Europe in time to spend last Christmas with relatives here, she remained in Louisville until about three months ago.

A tribute concert was arranged here in January in which she appeared in roles ranging from Bizet's "Carmen" to Stephen Foster's "My Old Kentucky Home." Among those sponsoring the concert were Mayor William B. Harrison and a group of society people.

A sister, Mrs. W. G. Wasservoehr, planned to go to Chicago following news of Mrs. Grant's death.

LINDBERGH TO HUNT BEAR IN MOUNTAINS OF MEXICO

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Col. Chaarles A. Lindbergh has accepted an invitation to hunt bears in the state of Coahuila and to seek cliff dwellings in the Sierra Madre Mountains of Chihuahua.

He sent a telegram yesterday to Col. Alexander J. MacNab, military attache of the American embassy here, who is organizing the party.

Headquarters for the expedition will be at the La Babia ranch of Hal Mangum, an American, who about a month ago entertained Ambassador Morrow for a fortnight. It is in Coahuila, about 100 miles south of the Texas border.

If Col. Lindbergh can prolong his stay after the bear hunt, the party will go from Mangum's ranch to one owned by Luis Leon, minister of agriculture, in the mountains of Chihuahua.

Col. McNab will leave Mexico City tomorrow for the north and Col. Lindbergh is expected to reach the ranch not later than next Wednesday. If he travels by airplane as far as the border, he probably will finish the trip by automobile.

Another member of the party will be Judge Leon Armisen, president of the Municipal Council of Pinar Del Rio, Cuba. He has been in Mexico City for several days as the guest of Col. McNab.

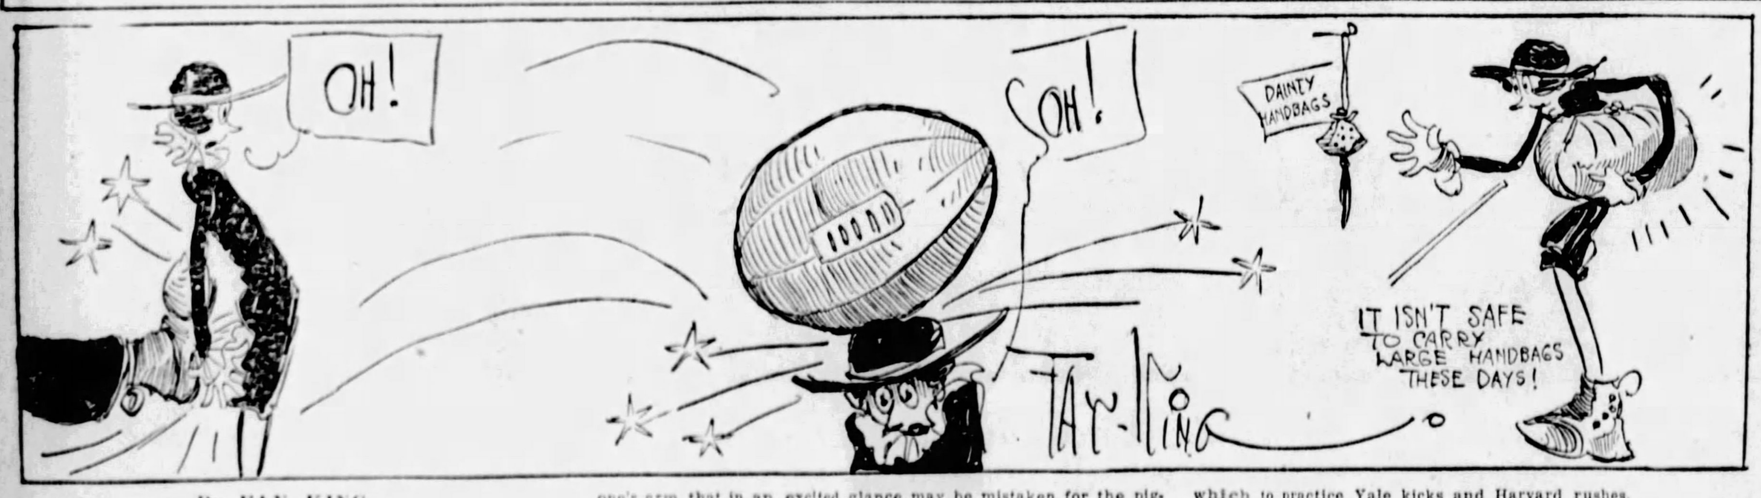
Football Season Forces Fay King to Buy Small Handbag for Safety



By FAY KING

I RUSHED out this morning to buy a small red handbag! With the football season now in full blast in every alleyway, it isn't safe to appear suddenly upon the scene with a big handbag under one's arm that in an excited glance may be mistaken for the pigskin!

One needs to take great caution these noon hours when husky elevens are practicing everywhere. No space seems too small in which to practice Yale kicks and Harvard rushes.

None of these feet or footballs have as yet done me any damage, but, just the same, I think the safest thing will be to buy a whistle and blow it for a rest period to last until I have passed.

A Chicken for Every Pot

THE Republican Party isn't a "Poor Man's Party:" Republican prosperity has erased that degrading phrase from our political vocabulary.

The Republican Party is equality's party—opportunity's party—democracy's party, the party of national development, not sectional interests—the impartial servant of every State and condition in the Union.

Under higher tariff and lower taxation, America has stabilized output, employment and dividend rates.

Republican efficiency has filled the workingman's dinner pail—and his gasoline tank besides—made telephone, radio and sanitary plumbing standard household equipment. And placed the whole nation in the silk stocking class.

During eight years of Republican management, we have built more and better homes, erected more skyscrapers, passed more benefactory laws, and more laws to regulate and purify immigration, inaugurated more conservation measures, more measures to standardize and increase production, expand export markets, and reduce industrial and human junk piles, than in any previous quarter century.

Republican prosperity is written on fuller wage envelops, written in factory chimney smoke, written on the walls of new construction, written in savings bank books, written in mercantile balances, and written in the peak value of stocks and bonds.

Republican prosperity has reduced hours and increased earning capacity, silenced discontent, put the proverbial "chicken in every pot." And a car in every backyard, to boot.

It has raised living standards and lowered living costs.

It has restored financial confidence and enthusiasm, changed credit from a rich man's privilege to a common utility, generalized the use of time-saving devices and released women from the thrall of domestic drudgery.

It has provided every county in the country with its concrete road and knitted the highways of the nation into a unified traffic system.

Thanks to Republican administration, farmer, dairyman and merchant can make deliveries in less time and at less expense, can borrow cheap money to re-fund exorbitant mortgages, and stock their pastures, ranges and shelves.

Democratic management impoverished and demoralized the railroads, led packing plants and tire factories into receivership, squandered billions on impractical programs.

Democratic mal-administration issued further billions on mere "scraps of paper," then encouraged foreign debtors to believe that their loans would never be called, and bequeathed to the Republican Party the job of mopping up the mess.

Republican administration has restored to the railroads solvency, efficiency and par securities.

It has brought the rubber trades through panic and chaos, brought down the prices of crude rubber by smashing monopolistic rings, put the tanner's books in the black and secured from the European powers formal acknowledgment of their obligations.

The Republican Party rests its case on a record of stewardship and performance.

Its Presidential and Congressional candidates stand for election on a platform of sound practice, Federal vigilance, high tariff, Constitutional integrity, the conservation of natural resources, honest and constructive measures for agricultural relief, sincere enforcement of the laws, and the right of all citizens, regardless of faith or origin, to share the benefits of opportunity and justice.

Wages, dividends, progress and prosperity say,

"Vote for Hoover"

Notes About Screen Stars and Attractions in Theaters

Next Film for Marion Davies To Be Talkie Made With Other Sound Effects

By REGINA CREWE.

(Copyright, 1928, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 20.

METRO has certainly gone full speed ahead with plans for Marion Davies, ace comedienne of the cinema. Everything is in readiness for her next starring vehicle, "The Five O'Clock Girl," to be filmed with sound and dialog.

Not only this, but as soon as "The Five O'Clock Girl" is completed, the star will begin work in another photoplay, tentatively titled, "Mary of Vassar," which is the name of the original story by Sarah Y. Mason, from which the screen play will be adapted. Obviously, the yarn will provide Miss Davies with another opportunity at the rollicking, varsity type of role with which she romped away in "The Fair Co-ed." Before it reaches the screen, however, Metro genius doubtless will give it a more euphonious and attractive title.

"That's A Bad Girl" is the present title of Colleen Moore's next photoplay. It is a tale of the latest model American flapper, by Carey Wilson, and the Colleen will make it just as soon as William A. Seiter is through directing her in "Synthetic Sin." Both Colleen and John McCormick, her husband, are unusually enthusiastic over its possibilities.

The broad-shouldered Victor MacLaglen is receiving the condolences of Hollywood over the death of his father in London, the Rt. Rev. Mr. MacLaglen, who had reached the ripe old age of 77.

The first of Pathe's all-talking pictures will be "The Missing Man." It is the product of John Posner, the European playwright, and Benjamin Glazer. Glazer will direct the drama. The leads haven't yet been selected, but important roles will be played by Robert St. Angelo, Clark King, Mary Forbes and George Barraud, all stage players with screen experience. It will be produced with the aid of photophone sound device.

Ruth Elder probably will move her makeup box over to the Universal lot in the near future. For it is understood that Ruth is to appear as Hoot Gibson's leading woman in the picture to follow his present production, "The Hell Wrecker," in which Ann Christy plays apposite him.

Little Sue Carol, who has won the heart of Hollywood by remaining modest and unspoiled by her movie success, is overjoyed because her pal, Virginia Cherrill, will be Chaplin's leading woman in "City Lights." Virginia came out from Chicago to visit Sue. The kids saw their first boxing match together, and met Charlie in a ringside seat. A screen test followed, and Virginia got the job. She is a 20-year-old blonde and cute.

Oodles of rumors are that Joseph P. Kennedy has signed Pola Negri to make three pictures for Pathe. No one admits knowing anything about it. But it is true that J. P. met Pola during his recent European jaunt, and no one would be surprised if Pola blossomed out again under the Pathe banner.

It seems a sure bet that just as soon as Lita Grey Chaplin completes her four-months' vaudeville tour, now beginning, she and Roy D'Arcy will be married. By the time the tour is finished Roy will have received his final divorce decree, and then there will be no impediment to the consummation of another Hollywood romance.

Apparently Carmel Myers couldn't complete her present engagement in time to play the role Columbia had for her in "The New Generation." Lina Basquette has been borrowed from Pathe for the part. Lina is busy these days doing dialog for her recent pictures.

When you see Norma Shearer's new picture, "The Little Angel," look twice at the chap who plays the role of the "cop." He is none other than James Gleason, whose plays have made him plenty during the past five years. Director Robert Leonard kidded Gleason into playing the role, and so got some of the highest-priced talent in Hollywood for an extra man's salary.

Warner Brothers' "No Defense" troupe has departed for Northern California to film exteriors for the picture amid the far-famed beauties of the Feather River Canyon. It is being directed by Lloyd Bacon, son of Frank "Lightnin'" Bacon, and it is his fifth Vitaphone talking picture. William Desmond, old-time favorite, has been added to a cast including May McAvoy, Kathryn Carver and Monte Blue.

A change in plans at Paramount substitutes an entirely new picture as Emil Jannings' next. He was to journey to New York for "Ellis Island," but now "Ellis Island" has been put in the discard for an original yarn titled "The Feeder," which has the great star cast in the role of a circus and "vode" performer. The picture will be directed by Lewis Milestone. No leading woman has been selected. Perhaps Evelyn Brent will play opposite him before she makes "Tahiti Nights." Meantime Lya de Putti is bound for Hollywood from New York, where she has been resting. Wouldn't it be great to reunite the "Variety" team in another circus story? In stage parlance a "feeder" is a "straight man," which in turn means more or less of a dub who asks the dumb questions, while the other fellow gives the smart answers and gets the applause. Plenty of opportunity for typical Jannings characterization.

Columbia is getting great names for "The New Generation." George Sidney was first mentioned for the leading role, but now no less a celebrity than Jean Hersholt has been signed for the part. Hersholt has been borrowed by Columbia for the picture. John Roche will provide his share of the romantic interest, and if Carmel Myers completes her work in "Badges," over on the Fox lot, she will portray the girl in the case. Incidentally, the title, "Badges," has been changed to "The Ghost Talks."

player in many pictures, will tour the Provinces as the feminine lead in a "Dracula" road company.

The team work of John Gilbert and Joan Crawford seems to please the Metro officials, for Joan has again been assigned the role of Jack's leading woman in his next picture, "Thirst." Joan has just signed a new long-term contract with Metro, and she probably will be established as a star in her own right before it expires. After "Thirst" she will be featured in "The Brass Band." Joan used to be a musical comedy dancer on the New York stage.

Hearing that Lionel Barrymore had drawn down a Metro contract to direct his own audible photoplay, Lowell Sherman hustled around and got a similar break for himself. No name has yet been given to Sherman's first attempt, but for the time being both will confine themselves to efforts in the two-reel field. Given a little experience at actual direction, these two exceptionally fine actors should turn out some wonderful productions.

COMEDY LISTED IN PLAYS

Pauline Frederick is to bring "The Imperfect Lady," a comedy by Zelda Sears and Relia Lambert, to the Pitt Monday night. This is Miss Frederick's first stage appearance since her success in London. "The Imperfect Lady" has played record engagements on the Pacific Coast. Going to Detroit for three weeks, it remained for three months.

McIntyre and Heath, in "Headin' South," coming to the Alvin next week, have a vehicle of nine scenes. The big minstrel first part, which closes the first act of "Headin' South," introduces every member of the company, and specialties are introduced.

When Richard Barry, former war correspondent and subsequently playwright, began the writing of his play "Davy Jones' Locker," to be seen in the Nixon next week, he did so with the intention of really dramatizing aviation, for the first time on the stage.

Irene Ricardo in a new version of her musical act, "Whoa Pagliacci," will head the bill of Keith-Albee vaudeville in the Davis next week. Johnny Hines in "The Wright Idea" will be on the screen.

On the screen in the Penn next week will be a D. W. Griffith picture, "The Battle of the Sexes," featuring Phyllis Haver. Dave Apollon, Russian artist, will head the stage bill.

"The Terror," next week's screen offering at Stanley Theater runs its creepy course, in an old English Manor house among crooks, cops, crazy folk and frightened women.

Madge Bellamy will be seen on the Aldine screen next week in "Mother Knows Best." The program includes Fox movietone sound pictures.

Al Jolson and the Vitaphone special, "The Singing Fool," remain in the Grand next week.

The vaudeville feature in the Harris the first half of next week will be Cantor Joseph Rosenblatt, tenor. A screen feature "The Cop."

Phil Kelly and Evelyn Forrest will present singing and dancing specialties in "High Flyers," next week's burlesque in the Academy.

ORGAN RECITAL TONIGHT

In Dr. Heinroth's organ recital program this evening in Carnegie Music Hall will be the popular classic "Minuet in G" by Paderewski along with that interestingly descriptive number "The Bells of St. Anne de Beaupre" by Russell. Other numbers are: Overture to "The Magic Flute," Mozart; Adagio Expressivo from Second Symphony, Op. 61, Schumann; four movements from Symphony No. 5, in F. Minor, Widor; Marche Slave, Opus 31, Tchaikovsky.

Sunday afternoon, at 4:15, Dr. Heinroth will give the following program: Overture to "The Merry Wives of Windsor," Nicolai; andante from Violin Concerto, Mendelssohn; air and variations, "The Harmonious Blacksmith," Handel; Un Giorno in Venezia, "A Day in Venice," Nevin; prelude to "The Deluge," Saint-Saens; Doric Toccata, Bach; ballet music No. 1 from "Rosemunde," Shubert; finale from First Symphony, Vierne.

OFFICER FREED IN KILLING

WASHINGTON, Pa., Oct. 20.—O. J. Mechling, coal and iron policeman of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, was exonerated of blame at inquest into the death of Lee Gray, Negro, shot and fatally wounded on the night of August 28, 1927, who died September 6, 1928. Gray was shot as he fled through the Washington County Jail court. His arrest was the result of a quarrel at the Gray home in which Mrs. Gray

GANGS BATTLE IN ROADHOUSE AT DANCE

Knives flashed and blackjacks swished through the air in Moonbeam Gardens, Penn township, last night when rival gangs from the Larimer avenue district, East End, and Wilmerding, staged a battle. A general riot call was flashed to the township police, Verona and Oakmont officers and the county detectives, by Harry Lynch, manager of the place.

When officers arrived shortly before last midnight, the belligerents had ceased their battle and fled, leaving overturned tables, broken chairs and shattered window glass.

According to County Detective Samuel Whisner, Larimer avenue boys resented the action of the Wilmerding shieks in taking the dance partners away from the East Enders. The battle was furious for a short time, but when Lynch began broadcasting the riot call, the battle ended quickly. Two men were reported to have been cut and several had been cracked over the head with blackjacks.

SEIZES TWO HE FINDS IN HIS AUTOMOBILE

Finding two men in his parked auto in Penn avenue, near Forty-seventh street, last night, Turnkey Warren Connors, attached to Morals Court, was threatened unless he "beat it." Connors gripped Thomas Galvin, 20, of 3914 Liberty avenue, and then reached over and caught George Wolford, 19, of 4519 Friendship avenue, he testified when the two men were arraigned. Both were held for court on a charge of larceny.

YOUTH'S DEATH IN '26 HELD CLEARED; REWARD $10,000

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—A mystery murder, the slaying two years ago of Robert L. S. Gustine, 17-year-old high school athlete, has been solved and the name of the slayer is known, Lieut. William Belshaw, head of the detective murder squad, has announced.

The identity of the slayer, and those with him when Gustine was shot, was revealed by John Bedner, 17, now in Eastern Penitentiary for a number of crimes.

Bedner named John Keller, 20, as the alleged slayer, the detective declared. Further information from Bedner resulted in the arrest of Joseph Linder, 18, who also is said to have declared Keller fired the fatal shot.

Bedner said, according to Lieut. Belshaw, that he and the other youths were out in an automobile the night Gustine was killed when they saw a car parked in a residential section. They stopped their car around a corner and Keller got out.

"Wait here until I take a look at this car," Bedner quoted Keller as saying. "I saw him enter the car and fool around with the wheel and the dash. As Keller started the motor the young fellow I later learned was Gustine, ran out and shouted. I think he asked Keller what he was doing in the car.

"I started the motor in our car, then I heard a shot and a moment later Keller came running up.

"He had a pistol. We drove away and Keller seemed near breaking down, repeating: 'I hope that guy don't die.'"

Gustine's father has offered a reward of $10,000 for the arrest of the slayers of his son.

CURTIS TIRED, BUT WILL CONTINUE TRIP

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—(AP.)—Senator Curtis, the Republican vice presidential nominee, came to New York today and went into seclusion in his suite at the Pennsylvania Hotel during his stop of a few hours here.

The senator appeared very tired from his strenuous day in New Jersey yesterday and he went to bed upon reaching the hotel shortly after 9 o'clock this morning. A physician was called in to treat his throat and the finger which was mashed in an automobile door some time ago. However, he announced he would proceed into Connecticut later in the day in keeping with his program.

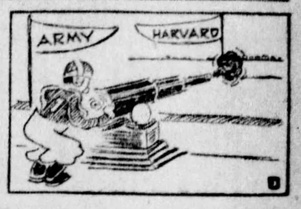
TECH EXPECTED TO BEAT WASH-JEFF

SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS

BEST IN PITTSBURGH — SATU...ER 20, 1928 — NINE



SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

W. & J. May Give Carnegie Tech Harder Fight Than Expected—Cronin's Chance For Washington Job Not Endangered by Warner's Coming—Latzo's Mishap Kills Proposed Bout Here.

FOOTBALL interest in the Pittsburgh district today, though the Pitt-Allegheny and Duke-Loyola games are not being overlooked, naturally centers around Forbes Field, where Carnegie Tech and Wash-Jeff meet in their annual tussle.

Andy Kerr.

Gridiron fans are not likely to be disappointed in their anticipation of a worth-while spectacle. This game, the second major event of the local season, shapes up as one that probably will be hard-fought from start to finish, and though indications point to a Tartan victory, in the end there is little likelihood that the Schenley Park lads will find the going anything in the nature of a walk-over.

THOUGH the Presidents were the victims of one of the greatest upsets of the season last Saturday, when the Dukes defeated them, 12 to 6, it does not necessarily follow that they will be easy victims for the Steffenites today.

A single week sometimes makes a vast difference in the form of a modern football team. In the present day sport you can't dope out with any degree of certainty what a team is apt to do in a certain game as judged by its showing in its preceding contest.

SUCH a capable and resourceful coach as Andy Kerr can accomplish a great deal toward improving an eleven in a seven-day period. Besides, the defeat at the hands of Duquesne probably has aroused the W. & J. players and filled them with new spirit and determination, so that, even though the Skibos win this afternoon, as appears probable, they are apt to find it inadvisable to let down at any stage of the proceedings.

Carnegie Tech has beaten Wash-Jeff only once. That lone victory was registered by a 6-to-0 score in a post-season game here in 1922. Two contests resulted in 7-to-7 and 0-to-0 ties, but in all of the 11 other clashes in a total of 14 meetings with the Plaid, the Presidents were the winners. Last year's score was 17 to 6.

THE fact that the Washington baseball club took Shortstop Jackie Warner from Detroit in the deal that sent Bucky Harris to Tigertown as manager for 1929, does not indicate by any means that Joe Cronin is to be sidetracked as shortfielder for the Senators. Indeed, the taking of Warner in exchange for Harris looks to be little more than a surface stall to make the deal look like a trade.

Joe Cronin.

THERE is a vast difference between the relative values of Harris and Warner, and as Clark Griffith does not generally permit himself to be worsted in baseball business matters it is probable that he received a tidy sum of money on the side.

He figured, perhaps, that the shift would sound better if it could be made to resemble a trade, and also, may have kept in mind the possibility that if cash terms were mentioned Harris might ask for part of the purchase price. Mr. Griffith does not overlook many things.

IN ANY event, the addition of Warner to the Senatorial roster can hardly crowd Cronin out of the picture. On the contrary, it is reported from sources close to the Washington club that the plans of the team bosses for next year include the slating of the young ex-Pirate for the regular shortstop job, at the beginning of the season, at least.

Certainly Joe does not suffer by comparison with Warner. From the time he went to the Senators until the end of the 1928 season, Cronin batted .254, which is admittedly far below his normal mark. He scored 22 runs, and made 58 hits, his safe blows including nine doubles and six triples. Warner, on the other hand, batted only .214, scored 34 runs and made but 44 hits, while his only extra-base socks were four doubles and three triples. So it looks as if Cronin will have little to fear if Warner is his only competitor for the shortfield post.

ASIDE from the scheduled bouts he was forced to cancel in Toronto, Philadelphia, Detroit and New York, on account of the broken jaw he suffered in a meeting with Jim Braddock, a supposed pushover in Newark, N. J., Thursday night, Pete Latzo must also add to his loss what promised to prove a profitable match in Pittsburgh. Manager John Hernon, of the Motor Square Garden Club, had planned to book Latzo for a meeting with Dick Evans, of Youngstown, O., as the feature event of his show on November 12. Evans recently put up a great fight with George Courtney, who was carded to face Latzo in Detroit on November 19, and a Latzo-Evans scrap here probably would have drawn a capacity house. But it's all off now, of course, and the loss of a match in this city, where he previously received $2,860 for a bout, must be counted among Latzo's damages resulting from the Newark disaster.

Pete Latzo.

IN VIEW of the fact that Latzo, in taking on a supposed sucker, fought on a percentage basis and received only $700 for all that happened to him—and one-third of the $700 went to Manager Jimmy Johnston—boxing promoters in this district are wondering why Latzo and other prominent glovemen are not as reasonable in their terms when they are asked to appear hereabouts.

Many of the topliners appear willing enough to box at comparatively small clubs around New York or elsewhere on percentage, but when promoters in this part of the country attempt to book the same fighters the latter refuse to gamble on the attendance but demand huge guarantees that cause the

CAPT. HARPSTER

CARNEGIE TECH STAR

Capt. Howard Harpster is the quarterback star of the Carnegie Tech eleven who has been playing under wraps in the Tartans' games so far this season and is expected to blossom forth in all his glory in the harder battles beginning with the Wash-Jeff tilt at Forbes Field this afternoon. He is a great all-round performer, starring as a ball-carrier, passer and punter and on defense, but to date has not been called upon to display the qualities which in the past have promised to win him all-America recognition. Eyth, Moorhead and Kennedy, halfbacks, and Karcis, the fullback, have been running wild while he has been hiding his light under a bushel. Photos illustrate Harpster's punting and ball-carrying form.

Speaking Of Sports

By HARRY KECK, Sports Editor.

LUKE CARNEY, veteran local handler of boxers, has a good idea about why boxing shows in Pittsburgh have not been drawing capacity gates in recent seasons. He expounded it the other night and it is so logical that it is worth putting down on paper and passing along.

"Times have changed since Hector wore a collar with a brass address tag on it," quoth Luke, "and we do not appear to have taken the new conditions into consideration. Nowadays we have automobiles that take the people swiftly from one city to another and they do not mind jumps of 40 to 50 or 60 miles to see a boxing show that strikes their fancy, and last Monday night there were four boxing shows in Western Pennsylvania alone, at Motor Square Garden, Washington, New Castle and Johnstown. The same boxers appear on all of these cards in turn. Whatever following they have goes with them. Thus, whereas in the old days the local fans stayed at home, they now accompany their favorites to the other towns on the nights they are fighting. Why not split up these show nights a bit and get better patronage all the way around?"

Sounds as if Luke has been doing some heavy thinking, which, let me hasten to assure the reader, in full justice to Luke, is not a rare occurence.

THE pitching records of the major leagues for the past season reveal some interesting highlights. For instance, Lefty Grove, of the Athletics, and Dazzy Vance, of the Robins, again stand out as the strikeout kings of the respective leagues. Vance fanned 15 Cubs on June 17. The next best mark was 11 whiffs in a game. Grove turned in that many four times, against Chicago twice and against Detroit and Cleveland. Vance set down 11 Cubs on strikeouts on September 21 and made the same team look foolish a third time by making 10 breeze on June 13. The Dazzler also fanned 10 Phillies, and had games in which he fanned nine Phillies, eight Pirates and Reds, and seven Braves, Cubs, Cards and Reds. He repeated the seven trick against the Braves. Grove pitched two games in which he struck out nine, four in which he fanned eight and one in which he set down seven.

Grove pitched two two-hit games and Vance one; Lefty also had two three-hit games to his credit and Vance one, and Vance let the enemy down with four hits twice against once for Grove.

Vance pitched five shutouts and Grove three. Despite the fact that he was incapacitated during the closing weeks of the season, Herb Pennock, southpaw ace of

MONTREAL STAR IS ADDED TO BUC SEXTET

By CARL W. SHATTO.

Manager Odie Cleghorn announced his first step forward in strengthening the Pirate ice club's lineup for this season yesterday, when he signed Hank Holway, superb Montreal Maroon defense player, while on a trip through Canada. He said in his communication to local headquarters that Holway had put his name to the dotted line for a year, after a conference with Montreal. The terms of the deal were not divulged by local officials.

Holway will report for duty next week. His acquisition gives the Pirate sextet five backfield men, which means that one or two players on the present roster will be dropped in the near future. While it is generally believed that Charley Langlois will be disposed of in the near future, it may be that Roy Smith is in for the same sort of medicine. That would leave Johnny McKinnon and Bert McCaffrey beside Holway.

Cleghorn is still dickering for two more players. He will return some time today or tomorrow to make ready for the players as they report for preliminary practice, which begins a week from Monday.

BOUCHER TO SIGN

POP WARNER'S STANFORD MACHINE BEATS IDAHO

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 20.—Pop Warner's Stanford University's football team opened up with deceptive reverses and forward passes trounced the University of Idaho, 47 to 0, here yesterday.

The Cardinals started slowly but soon warmed up to their "steam roller" strength. They were held scoreless in the first quarter, made one touchdown in the second quarter, crossed the Idaho goal line twice in the third session and made four touchdowns in the final period.

1929 DAVIS CUP FINAL SHIFTED FROM FRANCE

PARIS, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Competition for the Davis cup, emblematic of international team tennis supremacy, will be outside of France next year.

The French Tennis Federation, reaching this decision last night, attributed it to court decisions that international tournaments are shows and not sport and therefore are subject to a heavy entertainment tax.

BUC PILOT MAY SIGN TODAY

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

OWEN J. (DONIE) BUSH, manager of the Pirates, is in Pittsburgh today for a conference with Barney Dreyfuss.

It is thought that Bush came here at this time to talk contract for next year, and it would not be surprising if he signed today. He will witness today's game between Carnegie Tech and Washington and Jefferson.

An erroneous story out of Detroit was to the effect that Bush was dickering for the management of the Tigers, which assignment was given to Stanley (Bucky) Harris this week.

The Pirate boss gave out a statement before the season ended to the effect that the rumors that he was dickering with the Tigers were in error. Bush declared he had not had one word of any kind with the Detroit officials.

HARRIS TO BE SUB

Stanley Harris, celebrated breaker boy, who has just been named manager of the Detroit Tigers, will not play regularly, according to the latest news from Detroit.

Harris is not yet 32, but he intends to do battle only in emergencies, 'tis said. Perhaps he is influenced in his decision by the fact that the Jungaleers are said to have the best second-sacker in the American League in Charley Gehringer.

Several of the Detroit players recently were in Pittsburgh on a barnstorming trip. At that time the name of Gehringer was brought into a discussion, and immdiately one of Charley's mates pronounced him the best keystone tender in the junior circuit.

GEHRINGER MODEST

"Gehringer's only trouble is that he doesn't make any fuss or racket about his great ability," said Bill Sweeney, first baseman of the club.

The Detroit folks, however, would have a hard time telling National League fans that Gehringer is the superior of Hughey Critz, of the Reds, although we National Leaguers would have to admit that the Tiger star is a better hitter than the clever Rhinelander.

Gehringer is one of those smooth workers who makes dashing plays without much ado. At the plate he swings from the left side, and he is said to be a timely, dangerous boy with the willow. He is a good-sized lad.

Harris, himself, was one of the best second-basemen in the American League over several seasons. His pivot work on double plays helped to set a new double-play record for the sport that was broken last year by the Reds, with Critz and Ford doing the honors. Peckinpaugh was Harris's buddie on the double-shuffle trick.

The departing pilot of the Senators may see fit to revise his

ALLEGHENY, LOYOLA HERE

By JESS CARVER.

FROM the North, the East and the West, Pittsburgh is being invaded today by an impressive array of gridiron foes, the coming of whom fills this city's college football bowl to overflowing.

Out of the West rumbles the Red and Black-Jerseyed horde of W. & J., traditional enemies of Pittsburgh teams for a battle with the Plaid of Carnegie Tech. This game will be contested on Forbes Field's gridiron. From the North, out of the region of the Lakes, Allegheny College's Methodist eleven will sweep into the Pitt Stadium for a tussle with old Pitt. The East is represented by Loyola University of Baltimore, here for the purpose of testing further the Duquesne eleven that grabbed its share of national spotlight by beating Wash-Jeff last week.

The Tech-W. & J. struggle is the feature battle, both here and in country-wide circles. Ancient and honorable rivals, the teams today are battling for separate but highly important objectives. Tech, unbeaten in three early-season games, scored on thrice, hopes to establish its eleven this afternoon as one of the ranking great of the land by drubbing the Presidents. Never in history has Tech boasted such material and such potential strength. Wash-Jeff, the first hurdle, has in its possession the chance to first puncture Tech's hope of an undefeated season.

TARTANS FAVORITE

But the Red and Black is far from a choice to accomplish this task. Weakened through the loss of better than half of the fine 1927 team through graduation and ineligibility, with just fair material and little of it, and battered and bruised from the grueling battle with the Dukes last week, Andy Kerr's boys will have to play the greatest football of their careers if they are to beat Tech today. All signs point on a Tech victory—possibly by a sizeable score.

Tech has triumphed but once over Wash-Jeff in the years the schools have been dueling. In 1920, here in

DAVIS TO ATTEND

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Secretary of War Davis left last night for Boston where he will attend the Harvard-Army football game today. Prior to the game, he will review the West Point Cadet Corps on Boston Common.

UZCUDUN LOSES ON FOUL TO PETERSON

BROOKLYN, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Pauline Uzcudun, Spanish heavyweight, fighting his first match of a new American invasion, lost to Big Boy Peterson of Minneapolis, on a foul in the second round before a rain-sprinkled crowd of 5,000 here last night. Uzcudun was disqualified for hitting the Midwesterner while Peterson lay unconscious, his head hung over the middle rope.

Peterson, after holding the Basque even in the first round, collided with Paulino's burly left hook to the head in the second and went down for a nine count. As he staggered to his feet, almost helpless, the Spaniard swarmed all over him with crushing short-arm jolts to the head and body.

Peterson reeled into his own corner under the barrage and collapsed as Paulino nailed him cleanly with both hands to the head. The Midwesterner went down and out, but Paulino, in his anxiety, applied one punch more than was necessary. He hit Peterson, slipping past Referee Magnolia's guard to do so, and was promptly disqualified and the victory awarded to the unconscious battler.

Marco Polo, Pittsburgh heavyweight, scored a technical knockout over Harry Fay of Louisville, when the Southerner suffered a bad gash over his left eye in the fifth round. The referee refused to let the match go on in view of Fay's injury.

plans after the season opens. He should be in his prime as a player, and it is possible that after he "rides" the bench for a few weeks, the desire to swing into action may overcome him. Bucky always was a scrappy player, and aggressive boys do not like to sit on the side lines.

CHILLY SAUCE

IRVING VAUGHN, of the Chicago Tribune, is out with a big boost for Hack Wilson, Cub centerfielder, which is a commendable thing to do, but when Irv, comparing Hack with Lloyd Waner, attempts to make Lloyd out as a poor fielder and baserunner—well, it is high time for some other journalist to rush to the defense of the Bucco ball hawk.

BAD baserunners do not score from first on singles; neither do they always reckon aright the sprint from first to third, or from second to the plate, on singles, and it is a matter of record that Sprout rarely slips up in this connection.

IF VAUGHN had posted Brother Paul as a poor baserunner, that would have been another story entirely. Paul is not slow afoot, but he does not handle his speed as deftly as his younger brother. Lloyd does not steal many bases, for the reason that he is not ordered to go. The management probably figures that, hitting in front of Paul, Lloyd has a better percentage in waiting for the swat.

THE statement relative to Lloyd's fielding also is in error. Ask any ball player to name a National League centerfielder who can go farther for a ball than Lloyd, and the probabilities are he will answer, "None." The fact that the wee marvel does not possess a strong arm has been emphasized to such an extent that the fans are led to believe that he is a weakling on throwing. Don't believe this. Sprout can throw as hard as some of the stronger fellows, but you doubtless notice that he gets the ball away fast and accurately.

LEFT field might be a better position for Lloyd, all things being considered, just as center field brings out the best fielding there is in Hazen Cuyler, who, many think, would be the peer of all if he were played in this spot. Lloyd's snappy quick arms is not good enough to hold men at second as they race from first on singles. The shot from left to third is shorter, as a rule, and the ball reaches the fielder a bit quicker, it would seem.

THAT Joe Cronin, former Pirate youngster, has the best chance of any of the Senators for the shortstop job of next season, is the opinion of Louis Dougher, baseball writer of the Washington Times.

DOUGHER discussed Cronin and other Washington topics at the recent world series. He stated that Cronin had made a big impression on other Washington players, both as to his character and ability. Joe's batting average was not so high in the games he played, but he drove in a flock of runs on long hits.

NOW that Bucky Harris has departed, there will be a big fight for the second-base job at the capital. Cronin, however, will be kept on the other side of the bag, where he seems natural, according to present plans.

SCHOOL TEAMS IN ACTION

W. P. I. A. L. football contests of importance are on the books for today, together with a number of non-league battles.

Shady Side Academy is doing a traveling act, appearing at Hudson, O., where it faces the Western Reserve Academy eleven. Coach Palmer has been working his team hard this year and even with his rather green material, hopes to overcome the Buckeyes today.

Westinghouse, last year's City League titleholder, hooks up with New Castle's steam-roller machine today, and either team has chance of losing its unblemished record. Ken Ormiston, the Silver Lakers' sturdy fullback, is again in the field.

Fifth Avenue High will be visiting Wilkinsburg at Graham Field. Peabody is showing its wares at Jeannette. Charleroi battles Greensburg's warriors. Norwin is host to Youngwood. Turtle Creek faces Springdale on the Union Field.

In games played yesterday, Allegheny High fought to a 6-6 draw with Farrell at Farrell, Edgewood downed Arnold Prep, 25-0, and McKees Rocks eked out a 2-0 win over Curaopolis. Jack Clawson's Pitcairn High gridders won from the Duquesne University Preps, 25-0, and Bellevue upset a traditional rival in Sewickley. The score was 13-0.

Homestead lost a hard fought game to North Braddock, 6-0, at Homestead. This game was a district feature. Glassport won from Franklin with little difficulty, 24-0. Shinnston downed Fairmont West in somewhat of an upset, 12-6. Bells Vernon and Brownsville played to a scoreless tie and Oakdale defeated Mt. Lebanon, 19-0.

Morgantown High found Masontown easy, scoring a 56-0 triumph. Charleston won from Fairmont East, 12-6, and Beckley downed Montgomery, 31-0. Mt. Pleasant tied South Charleston, 6-6, and Mt. Pleasant won from East Huntingdon, 13-0, in West Virginia feature school games.

At Youngstown, Chaney High beat Memorial High, 12-6, in an exciting game.

UNDEFEATED MAY FALL TODAY

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Throughout the East today the college elevens which just now are leading the football parade encounter worthy opponents. Before the day is over the roll of unbeaten and untied teams, which now includes a score of names, is likely to be reduced to about half that number.

In some of the most important battles of the day teams with clear records of victories stack up against each other. Outstanding among these are the Army-Harvard, Dartmouth-Columbia and Yale-Brown games. The Lafayette-Bucknell fray at Lewisburg, Pa., also belongs to this category, as does the Syracuse-Nebraska inter-sectional contest at Lincoln. Other games which will shed considerable light on the mythical "championship" chances of the Eastern teams are those in which Carnegie Tech, Georgetown, Holy Cross, New York University, and Pennsylvania engage. All of these are still in the unbeaten and untied list.

GEORGETOWN AT W. Va.

Georgetown's high scoring aggregation takes on West Virginia Wesleyan, which has lost to N. Y. U. and is rated as a distinct outsider.

Chick Meehan's New York University steam roller is an overwhelming favorite to make Rutgers its fourth straight victim, while Pennsylvania is favored over Penn State in the annual tussle at Franklin Field.

Army is favored over Harvard largely because of its veteran material and strong line, yet Crimson adherents hold that Arnold Horween has the best eleven he ever built and that the Harvard backs compare favorably even with the Army backfield built around Cagle and Murrell.

Those who remember how Dartmouth smothered Cornell with passes and blinded the Big Red and others with the speed of the fleet-footed Marsters, can see nothing but Green in considering the Columbia game at Hanover. But Columbia men point out that Yale foud weaknesses in the Dartmouth line last year and that Allegheny pierced the Green defense for two touchdowns a week ago.

A Brown victory over Yale would be set down as something of an upset and Bucknell also would cause some surprise if it should defeat Lafayette. Syracuse is on the short end against Nebraska to about the same extent. Yet these three games contain infinite possibilities. None of the outsiders has yet been trimmed and any one of them has the ability to turn in a jarring win.

Three teams that have met disappointing reverses of one sort or another are out to redeem themselves. The Navy, which has yet to score a point taking on Duke. Princeton, which was tied by Virginia, facing an apparently-weak Lehigh team and Colgate, which lost to Vanderbilt, journeying to Michigan State to try to wipe out a defeat suffered in 1927. Pittsburgh which has suffered a setback at West Virginia's hands now can take it out on Allegheny.

BIG TEN RACE ON

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—The first major offensive toward settling the 1928 football championship of the Western Conference will be launched today with two undefeated teams, Indiana and Illinois, colliding in Urbana in the stadium Red Grange built.

It will be the game of the day, this fight between the Hoosiers, conquerors of Michigan, and the Illini, the 1927 titleholders, who will make their 1928 debut in Conference competition. There also are three other Conference games on the fire, but in each contest an eliminated team will be fighting one that is striving to remain in the championship ranking.

This will be particularly true at Columbus, where a capacity crowd in excess of 72,000 may take in the annual Ohio State-Michigan classic. The Wolverines, twice defeated, are not one of the important teams of other years, and today's game will yield an opportunity for the Buckeyes to break the Wolverine jinx and wipe off a few old scores.

With Illinois looming up as a repeater to win this year's honors, Coach Zuppke's men will go into the battle a favorite. Indiana figures it has an excellent chance to get even and will be out to upset last year's champions if possible.

Minnesota figures to make mincemeat out of the much-mauled Chicago Maroons in their game at Minneapolis.

One of the best battles of the day probably will be the affair between Wisconsin and Purdue at Lafayette. The Badgers are more eager to wallop Purdue than they were to put the skids under Notre Dame two weeks ago.

Iowa, who rank Chicago a week ago, eases up with a non-conference game against Ripon College at Iowa City, while Northwestern will come to grips with Kentucky at Evanston in the other remaining games of the Conference schedule.

With an enlarged league, the District loop will stage three games today. At Swissvale, the Pittsburgh Soccer Club will meet the Switch and Signal eleven. Last Saturday's affair was tame, and today's will be a battle with something resting upon the outcome.

The Rovers will meet Clan Douglas for the second week in succession. The fans who took a peek at last Saturday's affair, should take this session in, for it will be a real soccer game.

The Celtics will meet Twin Boros. The North Side lads are coming along and will be in the class to give the other contenders some real competition.

BAKER BEATS SIMONICH

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Sergt. Sammy Baker, contender for the welterweight title, spotted Jo Simonich three pounds and gave the tough Butte, Mont., battler a beating in 10 rounds here last night. Baker weighed 147½ pounds and Simonich 150.

the Yankees, led the American League in shutouts, with five, while in the National League five pitchers, including Burleigh Grimes, of the Pirates, blanked the foe that many times.

NEW YORK commission rules Rene DeVos must box George Courtney again before he can supplant the latter as the "official" challenger for Mickey Walker's middleweight title because his victory over George was scored in Philadelphia and doesn't count. At that rate, Jack Dempsey never lost the heavyweight title to Gene Tunney in their battle in the same city. A great line of reasoning.

AL HERFORD, of Baltimore, who managed Joe Gans when the latter was the lightweight champion of the world, and probably the greatest champion that class ever boasted, is taking an interest in the fortunes of Baby Joe Gans, of California, who has been knocking out his opponents with startling regularity in the East. He has presented Baby Joe a pair of the "Old Marster's" shoes and will help an old friend, Larney Lichtenstein, to handle Baby Joe in his next few bouts.

Herford cherishes tender memories of his days as pilot of Baltimore Joe, as I well know from conversations with him in recent years. Gans was a standout in his class even while in the last stages of tuberculosis, which brought about his untimely death.

EL OUAFFS name is pronounced El Wahfee and not El Ouafi, as might be supposed. Wahfee, old thing, is the Olympic marathon winner, in case you don't remember. He meets Joie Ray and a flock of other ankle experts in Tex Rickard's international ballyhoo in Madison Square Garden, New York, tomorrow night.

GLICK BEATS GILLIS

DETROIT, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Joe Glick, Long Island lightweight, won the decision over Hubert Gillis, Belgian fighter, in a 10-round bout here last night. Glick dropped the Belgian in the third round with a sharp left to the chin and maintained a lead over the remainder of the route without being forced to extend himself.

matchmakers to throw up their hands. There is little justice or fairness in the system. A fighter's worth depends solely upon what he can draw, and if he had as much faith in his own importance and drawing powers as he professes to have he would not ask for guarantees.

ORDINARILY a baseball manager whose club has won a pennant is in a position to look forward to the next season with a feeling of confidence and few worries. He knows he has a winning team that will be good for another campaign without much changing.

That isn't true in the case of Billy Southworth, however. The former Pirate outfielder, who piloted the Rochester club to the International League pennant this year, has got to build up almost a whole new club for the season to follow.

Billy Southworth.

IT'S all the result of the chain-store system of the St. Louis National League club. Rochester is one of the Cardinal farms, and what the Redbird owners have taken from Southworth's team for next year is sufficient to wreck the International League champions of 1928. For their own club in St. Louis they have grabbed Charley Gelbert, Pitcher Herman Bell and Infielder George Toporcer, and in addition they have transferred Pitcher Vic Keen and First Baseman Pete Monahan from Rochester to another of their farms in Houston. On top of all that, Pitcher Tony Kaufmann was drafted by the Giants. Surveying the wreckage Southworth finds that Catchers Hank Gowdy and Bob Morrow, Third Baseman Joe Brown, and Outfielders Harry Lane and Gus Felix are about all that he has left. He will have to wait until spring for a new flock of St. Louis discards.

RUDY WOULD BE TOPLINER HERE

YOUNG RUDY, the popular lightweight of Charleroi, managed by James (Red) Mason, thinks this is his year and he plans to make the most of the winter boxing campaign. He knocked out Slambang Harry Taylor in their windup bout at Johnstown last Monday night, and when he meets Johnny Kusic, of Youngstown, in the semi-final to the Garfield Johnson-Maxie Rosenbloom bout in Motor Square Garden Monday night he hopes to demonstrate to the satisfaction of the local fans that he is ready to be installed as a headliner in Pittsburgh, where for several seasons he has done his best fighting.

He wants the local promoters to import talent here for him to meet, in order that he may be given an opportunity to make his mark as a contender for the top honors in his class.

Rudy long has been a favorite with the fans here. He is a good boxer and hitter, always is in condition to maintain a blistering pace and is a crowd-pleaser. He has been promised a real chance to prove his mettle if he wins decisively over Kusic, a recent graduate from the featherweight ranks, in which he claims to have beaten U. S. Carpentier, Mickey Dugan, Eddie Ruttman, Johnny Corbett and Babe Keller, among others.

MAXIE DUE TOMORROW

Rosenbloom will arrive tomorrow morning from New York for his battle with Johnson and will work out in public in the Garden gym in the afternoon. Johnson already is on the scene and confident he will reverse the decision Rosenbloom scored over him last season at Motor Square.

Thirty-two rounds in all are offered on the card Monday night. The main event is 10 rounds, the semi-final and two preliminaries are booked for six rounds each and the opening event will be a four-rounder. U. S. Carpentier, of New Kensington, meets an old rival, Frankie Buff, of Natrona, in the third bout, and Joe Louder, of the South Hills, boxes Harry Spencer, welterweight knockout sensation of Washington, Pa., in the second number.

A new four-round opening bout may have to be arranged as a result of an injury suffered by Paul Karcis, New Brighton heavyweight, while playing football. Paul is a brother of Johnny Karcis, the Carnegie Tech fullback, and was scheduled to meet Ray Braun. Unless a capable subsitute can be lined up for Braun, a new bout will be signed.

Johnny Crecley, former local featherweight boxer, who now is a manager of tailtmen in Cincinnati, writes that he has his Pennsylvania Dutch middleweight, Johnny Mason, boxing Johnny Powers, of Terre Haute, in Cincinnati tonight and is anxious to bring him here to box Maxie Rosenbloom, Osk Till, George Courtney or anybody else his weight. Mason has been a consistent winner against good opponents.

Pete Zivic, who twice defeated Lou Moscowitz, of New York, knockerout the other night of Dominick Petrone, is matched with Frisco Valdez, of Youngstown, a Filipino, for an eight-round bout at Wellsville, O., Monday night, October 29. Pete stopped Moscowitz in the first round last March 3 and defeated him again in 10 rounds two weeks later.

Amateur boxing bouts, singing and other entertainment make up a program for members and visitors at Pittsburgh Lodge No. 11, B. P. O. E., to be held in the Elks' temple, Seventh street and Duquesne way, this evening.

RYAN TO BOX ADELMAN

Johnny Ryan, of Erie, and Davey Adelman, of Philadelphia, will box the 10-round windup at McKeesport next Thursday night. Ryan, who formerly made his home in Boston, has been boxing a great deal throughout the Tri-state section, but has appeared in McKeesport only once, knocking out Ken Hargreaves in an open-air bout. Adelman, former state flyweight champion, has boxed Willie Davies a number of times and also fought Andy Tomosky in McKeesport. Enhancing this attraction is the six-round semi-final, a return bout between Dominick Profio, the hard-hitting former amateur star, and Jackie Murray, Negro welterweight, of Center avenue, who recently lasted the limit under Dominick's punching in a battle at McKeesport.

TECH REJECTS EASTERN OFFER

Clarence E. Overend, graduate manager of Carnegie Tech, this morning turned down an offer from Villa Nova for a game between the two schools next Fall. The eastern school offered the Saibos a choice date on its 1929 football card, but owing to the fact that Carnegie meets Pitt in their annual battle on that day, Overend turned down the proposition.

FOOTBALL

the Skibo Bowl, a fighting Tartan eleven eked out a 6 to 0 win. Two ties have been played, one in '21, the other in '25.

Tech will start the game with Dreshar at guard and Meilziner at center. On the defense, Dreshar will shift over to roving center and Mel will go to left guard. Rosenzweig and Sweet are to start at the ends. Schmidt and Highberger will be at the tackles.

In the backfield, Harpster, Letzelter and Glenn Moorehead are to start the battle. Moorehead has won the call over the rest of the halfbacks, mainly because of his speed and experience.

Remember this, though, as you strain in your seat as the boys set out upon their battle today—a fighting team always has a chance—and Wash-Jeff is a fighting team.

In somewhat of a crippled state, with four and possibly five varsity men out of action with injuries and sickness, Allegheny confronts a desperate Panther eleven today, one still smarting from the lash of the West Virginia defeat. Pitt teams, beaten on a previous Saturday, are always the most dangerous in the land. Today's Panther crew will be no exception. Allegheny may win, but it will be well-clawed at the finish.

No changes are anticipated in the Pitt lineup. Allegheny's is uncertain. It may be that Coach Sutherland will keep Ruby Dimeolo on the bench at the start and use either Crissinger or Lewis in his place at guard. Capt. Fox's fractured hand is still in a cast, but the scrappy leader is booked to start.

The remainder of the starting lineup will be the same as started against West Virginia. Donchess and Guarino are to be at the terminals. Tully and Mike Getto will play the tackles, Monty Montgomery will be at center and Edwards, Uansa, Williams and Parkinson will make up the backfield.

LOYOLA-DUKES CLASH

In the worst physical condition of any of the local schools, the Dukes face a double obstacle in Loyola today. Not only are the Easterners here with a strong team, but the grinning phantom of over-confidence may trip up the ambitious Dukes. The victory over Wash-Jeff was a fine thing, but Coaches Layden and Reagan have been hard put to get the idea out of the boys' heads that they are world-beaters.

Neither Burns, halfback star, or Capt. Donnelli are to start against the Oysters. Burns is not even fit to be in uniform. Donnelli will have his suit on, but with a wrenched side, a black eye and a bum leg, the coaches do not plan to use him unless it becomes absolutely necessary.

On the line, Guerrier, Czinki, Kirby, Skender, Kelleher and Clark will line up, with either Silverstein or Lally, the center pair. Some of these boys, especially the guards, Kelleher and Clark, took severe lacings at Washington. Replacements will be used as soon as possible, though if Loyola serves the Dukes with half the opposition Layden figures they will, there will be small chance for shifts in the lineup.

In one respect, the Dukes will be better off than they were against the Presidents when the freshmen were barred. There are some sweet football players on the frosh list and they are eligible for action today.

Kovalchek is slated to start at fullback in the place of the storm-tossed Donnelli, and Turk is the favorite to take Burns' place at a halfback. Benedict and McCarthy are both fit for duty.

21 More Laid Off in East End Due to One-Man Cars

VETERANS GIVEN NOTICE

Due to the extension of the one-man street cars in the Wilkinsburg section 21 trainmen of the Pittsburgh Railways Company have been furloughed, according to a notice posted at the Homewood car barns and effective as of November 1. Sixteen motormen and five conductors are affected by the order.

The notice reads that the furloughed men are to leave their addresses with the company and that in the event of reinstatement they will have 15 days' notice to report for work.

In the event that the furlough extends to a period of one year, they will be automatically out of the company's service. The notice is signed by Frank W. McCarthy, superintendent of car operation of the railways company.

VETERAN LOSES

Among the men furloughed is W. J. Stockwell, a veteran of 25 years' service, 20 of which he was attached to the tunnel car barns. Owing to the illness of his wife, he was forced to move to the Homewood locality and lost his seniority rights when he reported at the Homewood barn, May 24, 1924, having the status of a new employe.

Another name on the list is that of Herbert Courtley, who 10 days ago was thrown from the top of a Verona and Oakmont street car at Miller stop, while repairing a trolley pole. Courtley, who was a one-man car operator, stopped his car to repair the trolley pole, which had become charged, and the force of the electricity threw him to the ground, where he remained in an unconscious condition until found by another car operator. Courtley was sent to the hospital, and, following his discharge, three days later, was taken home, where he is still confined.

WILKINSBURG LEGION PLANS OPEN MEETING

The David I. Rankin Post 234, American Legion, will hold an open meeting, to which the public is invited, in the club rooms, 726 Ross avenue, Wilkinsburg, next Thursday evening. Members of the Grand Army of the Republic are especially invited, according to Commander W. S. P. Yocum.

R. C. CLOTHIER

Robert C. Clothier, Haverford, Pa., will take up duties July 1, 1929, as dean of men at University of Pittsburgh, it is announced. He is a Princeton graduate.

5 Safety Leaders Named

The Western Pennsylvania Safety Council has announced its district chairmen for the observance of its Fourth Annual No Accident Month, beginning November 1.

Chairmen named for the surrounding boroughs are: C. E. Ramage, Braddock; J. P. Leonard, Coraopolis; C. B. Auel, East Pittsburgh; E. F. Harris, Homestead, and George W. Miller, Wilkinsburg. Each chairman is authorized to appoint his own safety committee to assist the general committee in making the observance a success.

SCHENLEY AMARANTH ARRANGES CARD PARTY

Schenley Court No. 34, Order of the Amaranth, will hold a card party Monday night in Serbian Hall, Fifth avenue. Mrs. Marian Smith, Mrs. Eleanor Till, Mrs. Sophia Hirchmann and Mrs. Elizabeth Gill are in charge.

SWISSVALE OFFICES AFIRE

Hundreds of Swissvale residents were attracted to Braddock avenue early today to witness a spectacular fire which caused $1,500 damage to the offices of the Braddock Instrument Company at 2444 Braddock avenue.

The company manufactures celluloid architects' instruments, and this material burned rapidly and with colored flames.

The blaze was of undetermined origin and spread through the upper floor of the two-story building. Swissvale firemen, under Chief Peter McGuirk, fought the blaze for almost an hour before it was extinguished.

GUARD OAKMONT R. R. CROSSINGS

Oakmont's three railroad crossings, a menace to motorists for many years, are getting warning signals, Oakmont borough authorities and the Pennsylvania Railroad finally installing equipment for the protection of lives.

As scenes of many fatal accidents, the three crossings, at College, Washington and Pennsylvania avenues, are being equipped with the latest type flash signals, designed to give ample warning of the danger of approaching trains.

The railroad is paying two-thirds of the expenses incurred, while the remainder is being paid by the borough.

NEW POLICE DISTRICT IN SQUIRREL HILL PLANNED

City Council is considering the advisability of relocating the boundaries of the Squirrel Hill police district, so that all of Squirrel Hill will be protected by patrolmen reporting to No. 11 Police Station.

So James F. Malone, president of city council, advised James C. Sims, chairman of the municipal affairs committee of the Board of Trade. At present the area lying between Murray avenue bridge and Hazelwood avenue is policed by men from Hazelwood station, whose facilities have not been sufficient to cope with the number of robberies recently perpetrated in that section.

PEABODY ASKS ATHLETIC FIELD

Peabody High School wants an athletic field!

There is a crying need for the field, according to students who have launched a drive for the purchase of a site between Station and Rodman streets in Highland avenue, a block distant from the school.

In their appeal the students point out the advantages to be gained from the field and the comparatively low cost of the site as compared to other property in the vicinity.

The field is the only available piece of vacant property near the school, it is pointed out, and if favorable action is not taken now, the school may go for another generation without an athletic field.

Girl Arm Broken, Father Accused In Beating

Beaten by her father yesterday, police say, Lillian Tubart, 9, of House 115, Harwick, suffered a broken arm. The parent, John Tubart, arrested by county detectives, is held at Cheswick police station.

The arrest of the father occurred after neighbors had complained to Juvenile Court attaches. He is charged with assault and battery and cruelty to children.

Squire to Hear Fate Monday

A sealed verdict will be read Monday in James H. Gray's branch of Criminal court in the case of Justice of the Peace John Popp, Jr., and Constable Michael Blazier, tried yesterday for conspiracy to defraud Michael Polischek, 839 Washington street, Braddock, of $1,200. A charge of fradulent conversion was also tried against the constable.

Trial of the case lasted all day Friday, the judge completing his charge to the jury after the regular hour for adjournment.

Polischek testified that he had been arrested by Constable Blazier on a warrant from Squire Popp's office on December 5, 1927, in which he was charged with a serious offence by John Smyda, 917 Talbot street, Braddock. The latter brought the suit on behalf of his minor daughter. Polischek said that after being placed in the lockup over night he was told he could be released on $1,200 bail for a hearing the following night. He said the constable went with him to a bank in Braddock where he withdrew the money and paid it over to Popp and Blazier. Then he employed an attorney to defend him, but when they went to the squire's office for the hearing they were told by a clerk that the case had been settled and the money paid over as follows: $800 to the girl, $300 to her father and $100 to the squire.

Squire Popp testified that only $500 had been paid by Polischek and said he knew he was making the payment to settle the case and not putting it up as bail. The constable corroborated this as did the girl's father, who said Popp gave him the money.

ROBBERS FOILED BY GIRL

The screams of Jessie Dapper, 21, of 839 East Hutchison avenue, Swissvale, prevented a robbery in the offices of the Standard Cleaning Company at 702 Rebecca avenue, Wilkinsburg, last night.

Miss Dapper was walking in Rebecca avenue when she saw a man climbing in a window of the office. The young woman screamed and pedestrians and police were attracted. The man fled across a roof and escaped. Although police searched the neighborhood for several hours they were unable to locate the robber.

DREAM OF INJURY TO SON TRUE DESPITE PRECAUTION

Mrs. Effie Oram, 214 Thomas street, Wilkinsburg, dreamed that her son, Harold, 7, was the victim of an accident. So vivid was the dream that next day she did not permit the youngster to attend the Allison School, where he is a pupil.

Friday morning, her fears somewhat abated, she permitted the boy to go to school. Before night Harold was a patient in Columbia Hospital with a double fracture of the left leg. He was struck by an automobile owned and driven by Vincent B. Henry, 24, a craneman of 558 Rosedale street. The accident happened on Wallace avenue, near Mulberry alley.

Henry, after striking the lad, took him to the hospital and reported to the police, giving bond to await the result of the boy's injuries.

According to Henry's statement the youngster ran against the machine. With Henry in the machine was his wife, Mrs. Sarah Henry, and their 18-months-old child. Mr. and Mrs. Henry were on their way to Hannastown to attend a birthday party given in honor of Mrs. Henry's mother.

WILL INSPECT NEW CAMP

The men of East Boroughs Council with headquarters at Wilkinsburg, are accepting the opportunity to visit the new camp site of the Council on Sunday. The new camp is the gift of the President, John F. Miller, and is located in the beautiful Laurel Ridge half way between Ligonier and Bolivar.

The site comprises 58 acres and is ideally suited for the purpose. Considerable improvement has taken place since the land came into possesion of the Council, chief among which is the excavation of a swimming pool, 50x120 feet. Approximately 50 persons will make the pilgrimage.

Miss Ida Kane is in charge of the entertainment.

SPLINTER FATAL TO TRAFFORD BOY

A splinter which lodged in his left foot several days ago caused the death of Frank Todaro, 5, of Third street, Trafford, in the Children's Hospital last night. The splinter stuck in the lad's foot while he was playing in his home, October 8, and an infection developed.

Raising Pigeons East End Man's Hobby

Raising pigeons is the hobby of John Gavin, of 12 Champa street, Wilkinsburg, but unlike most hobbies which keep men "home at nights," this particular pastime sometimes takes Mr. Gavin 400 or 500 miles away from home.

And invariably Mr. Gavin's pigeons get back home before he does—for they are "homing pigeons."

To say that Mr. Gavin knows his pigeons would be putting it mildly. Mr. Gavin and his pigeons are almost inseparable—he knows them intimately and understands them as few people do.

Mr. Gavin has some more or less famous birds. There is "Miss Navillus," for instance. This marvelous red hen took second prize in a 400-mile race from Terre Haute, Ind., to Pittsburgh. Also "Miss Champa," a beautiful black hen.

COUNTY HEALTH HEAD PRAISES BRADDOCK

The Rotary Club of Braddock at its weekly luncheon Thursday was addressed by Dr. John P. Conover, medical director of Allegheny county. The meeting was held in the Elks Club, Dr. J. B. Smith presiding. Arrested near a Frankstown avenue pawnshop where he had attempted to pawn an overcoat and a pair of gloves, Bente Septo, 16, of 6342 Penn avenue, was lodged in the Frankstown Avenue Police Station on a suspicious person charge. Police say the articles had been stolen from a parked automobile at Emerson and Alder streets a short time before.

FILMS OF TOUR FOR CLUB

A feature of the annual meeting of the Wilkinsburg Automobile Club in the Y. W. C. A. on November 1, will be the initial showing of the film depicting scenes of the club's tour of the Cook Forest a month ago when 38 cars and more than 150 members took a two days' trip. Among those making the tour were four members of the club who made it 20 years ago. They are Mr. and Mrs. W. H. McKalip, Dr. W. C. Cook and F. E. Pollock. Other films will be shown and a buffet lunch will be served after which officers and directors for the coming year will be elected.

FOUR WOMEN TAKEN IN VERONA DRY RAIDS

Seven persons, four of them women, were arrested by Federal prohibition agents who yesterday raided seven homes in Verona. Four of the dwellings were in Penn street and three in Arch street. The raided houses were within a few doors of each other, the agents said. Four stills and large quantities of moonshine and home brew were reported seized.

NEW HOME FOR E. END BOARD

New and larger headquarters for the East Liberty Chamber of Commerce, formerly the East Liberty Trade Association, are assured, and at next Tuesday's meeting a committee will report on a location and lease now under consideration. A larger membership and wider scope of activities, together with an increased office staff, makes the move essential.

At a meeting Wednesday of the Board of Governors, an Oakland site for the new Town Hall was favored as best suited to the needs of the East End section. At Tuesday's meeting a speaker will explain the coming drive of the Welfare Fund of Pittsburgh.

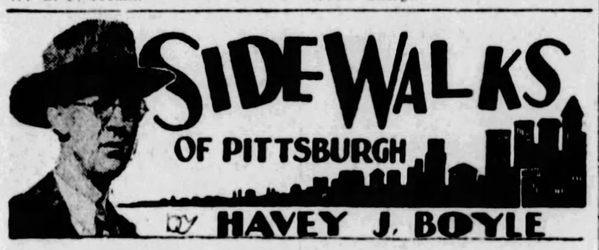
HOMEWOOD SEES TRAPS IN 'DEAD END CORNERS'

Homewood's "dead-end corners," where street cars turn sharply into an alleyway, are a menace to the safety of pedestrians in that district, according to residents and business men of the Homewood-Brushton sector.

Mentioning specifically Felicia way, they point out that the single car track running close to the Homewood car barns between Lang and Braddock avenues constitutes a traffic trap that should be corrected.

The single track line, running through the poorly lighted alley, crosses important streets, including Homewood avenue, where the built-up corners increase accident risks.

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH



BY HAVEY J. BOYLE

GRAFTON DUVALL asks us to confirm the widespread rumor that National Apple Week will be observed on the sidewalks of Pittsburgh, beginning October 29. The week, we imagine, is designed to make Pittsburghers what is now generally described as "apple conscious," or "apple minded." If a certain old saying bears any truth, the Allegheny County Medical Association will select that week to stage a golf tournament at some distant point from Pittsburgh. You know the old saying: "An apple a day, etc."

What class of women (as to occupation) make the best wives? It is our guess that the long distance telephone operators would likely win the capital prize. Certainly, no class is more attentive to total strangers, which leads to the reasonable supposition that they would be extra-attentive to such a close friend as a husband.

Anyone who ever has made a long distance call is likely to coincide with this opinion. After you put in a call you might as well give up all work until you get your party for the attentive miss in the toll departments will not brook much interference.

"I CAN'T raise Mr. Smith," she says, "but he is expected back at 3:30 o'clock." That is about 2 o'clock. Follows then at regular intervals the information from the girl friend that Mr. Smith is still intent on not getting back to his office until 3:30 o'clock." Around 3:30 o'clock you can sense the search for the button or Mr. Smith is getting decidedly hot. Then just as the clock strikes 3:30 the telephone bell rings and you are informed that Mr. Smith has not come in yet.

The Northwest Mounted has gained an enviable reputation, but we'll stack the long distance operators against them anytime.

WE WERE reading the other night "American Notes," in which Charles Dickens gave his none too complimentary opinion of this country. He spent three days in Pittsburgh, noted the luxury of our hotels, and wondered at the steamboats which were docked at the wharf at Water street. He was considerably put out because the boats didn't look at all like the boats he had seen in England, which recalls how the present-day fun-makers chide Americans, who, upon traveling abroad, are always making odious comparisons. Here was a smart gentleman like Dickens doing about the same thing.

Mr. Dickens noted here as elsewhere that the natives were given to tobacco-chewing. He complained about the habit and its by-product of an attempt at accuracy in marksmanship. He was as much disturbed by the poor aim of our local marksmen among the plug-chewers as he was over the habit itself.

LADIES who have been campaigning against Lady Nicotine in all forms would have found an able and ardent recruit in Mr. Dickens.

Will Rogers Says

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.

It was a rainy, cloudy day on the New York end of the air mail, no planes through in two days. I wanted to get home to my family in California. I insisted on going.

IT WASN'T BRAVERY, IT WAS DUMB IGNORANCE, AND AN UNLIMITED CONFIDENCE IN ALL AIR MAIL PILOTS. "WE WILL TRY TO GET THROUGH IF YOU INSIST," AND WE GOT THROUGH, CLEAR TO CLEVELAND.

But this last try he didn't get through. I kinder feel like his skill saved my life.

SO "HOPPIE," OLD BOY, HERE'S HOPING YOU ARE PILOTING THE BEST CLOUD THE BOSS HAS GOT IN HIS HANGAR UP THERE, AND YOU DON'T HAVE TO WORRY ABOUT LOW CEILING, ENGINE MISSING, HEAD WIND, OR EVEN WHETHER THE OLD RIP CORD WILL PULL IN CASE.

Yours, WILL ROGERS.

What Color Is the Moon?

ANOTHER illusion has been swept away by the observant scientist. Some have heard so frequently of the "silvery moon" that we have taken its silveriness for granted. An astronomer declares it is not silver but yellow.

STOLEN LOVE

by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

Joan Fears Anna Sedgwick Will Tell Her Aunts That She Saw Her

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Joan Hastings, seventeen and beautiful, living with two old maiden aunts in a house long run to seed, hears the tragic story of her unmarried mother's love affair and death from Aunt Evvie, who warns her not to follow in her footsteps. Joan, lonely and impressionable, falls in love with Bill Martin, whose social status is far beneath her own. The aunts plan to send her away to school, and she and Bill, terrified at the thought of parting, let their emotions get the upper hand. Bill is arrested, the victim of a bootlegging gang, and Joan, frantically asking for money to bail him out, confesses to her aunts her relations with him. Horrified, they put her on a train, bound for school, in charge of a woman friend. They denounce Bill and persuade him never to see her again. Joan slips off the train, and Walter Dunne, a kindly motorist, gives her a ride back over the two hundred miles. She arrives at Bill's home a little while after he has kissed his mother goodby, leaving no address. Through Dunne, she goes to live with Maisie Kimmer and gets a job in a department store. She writes Bill, but receives no answer. Her aunts hear that she has never reached the school, and Evvie telegraphs the woman to whom she entrusted her that Joan took a later train, after being left behind by accident at a way station. Having assured herself that this lie is admissible, Evvie washes her hands of her niece. Meanwhile Bill, on his way, picks up Rollo Keyes, a rich lad befuddled with drink, gets his car to working for him and drives him to his home. Rollo's dad offers Bill a job surveying in the oil fields. Maisie advises Joan to write to Bill's mother. Maisie's daughter hires her as a model at her smart shop.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"DANCING?" he asked, smiling.

Joan looked down at her plate, terribly embarrassed. When she looked up again Hogan had gone away with him. She was laughing up at him as she danced.

After a long time Hogan came back with the boy. They sat with their heads close together, and talked in whispers. Hours passed, surely it was midnight! But when the waiter brought the check and Joan paid it and slipped out of the door it was only half past eight!

Next day even Maude was cool. "Gave us the slip, eh? Well, it's your affair, but you're not much of a sport, Hastings!"

Jean's attempt to fraternize with "the girls" was a total failure.

"Discouraged?" Francie asked the next morning, finding her left out of the chattering group in the coat room.

"Yes!" Joan burst out suddenly. She had been gathering courage for this all day. "Francine, I wasn't made to model dresses. It isn't enough. Maybe I could have done it if—if I had something—someone you know—something big to think about between times. But I haven't. I'm going to leave, Francine, and—"

"Leave!"

"Yes—oh not because of the girls—just because of myself—that's all. I just saw, all of a sudden—that I could—if I tried real hard—do something with my life—"

"But what do you want to do?" Francine was asking for the third time. "Oh Joan, you little idiot, don't give it all up! You've got a sense of color and line. You'll make a saleswoman—a real one—like me. I'll teach you the business—you'll just model for special customers—I'll make something of you—"

"Thats just what I do want! I want to learn—everything—study—I though I'd go to night school, there's a designing course—"

"All right, Francine said. "All right.'

But when she saw Anna, regal in the wedding gown she had been wont to wear, when she knew that even that make-believe was over, a lump rose in her throat, she groped her way back to a fitting room and cried. Cried because this was the end—the end of her mourning for Bill.

Maisie didnt understand all the studying. Never a night but what Joan had her nose in a book. She was always fussing with water colors, or sketching little figures with very small heads, and very long legs.

But Joan did seem a different girl. Her color was coming back. Sometimes she whistled as she worked. Work! She fairly wallowed in it! Up so early in the morning, to be the first one in the shop. She could learn so much from Francine, before customers came. Up so late at night, studying, when she wasn't at night school, long after Maisie, stifling her yawns, had wound the clock, and padded off to bed.

It was hard, but it paid! She was getting there, building a career. She'd be a success! She'd climb to the top . . . forget . . . forget . . .

Over in Sausalito the girls she used to know had forgotten her, all but Hilda Sedgwick. In Hilda's heart a little flame of envy burned. The stuck-up Van Fleets! They were worse than ever since Joan went East to boarding school.

"You'd think nobody ever went before! Oh, mother—I DO want to go to Bryn Mawr. I think father's so stingy."

"Hilda!"

"Well, he is. But I don't care—I'm going to set him back plenty for the Tri Theta dance—"

What can you do with girls these days? Mrs. Sedgwick had such a cold. She ought to go with them, and see they didn't pick out something foolish, but she felt so miserable—"Ah-choo!"—There—she was sneezing again. "Remember, mother wants you to get something girlish, and not too expensive—you know what father said about last month's bills—"

Such fun to shop. The black velvet in the Ville de Paris was too lovely for words, but of course mother would have a fit.

"Why don't you like the green taffeta at Nelson's?" Anne was so easily pleased.

"Oh there are a million just like it—I want something really nice, Father needn't be so tight! Let' just look in Francine's—"

"Hilda! Maison Francine! They don't have a thing less than—"

"I know—but we can look—"

There was just one gown in Francine's window. A cloud of heavenly pink.....girlish enough to please a dozen mothers..... chic enough to sicken all one's friends.....Hilda knew exactly the way she'd look in it...

So did Hogan when Hilda wanted to try it on. Those stoop shoulders, gracious—

"I'll have it modeled for you," she gushed. "You can tell so much better, seeing it on the figure—"

Of course, Anna had to take that very minute to go out to lunch. "You'll have to model the pink chiffon for me!" Hogan said billigerently to Joan, "lending a hand" in the workroom.

Francine had praised her. She felt giddy with elation. "Why, I don't mind, Hogan!"

Down the three shallow steps Joan came, all glowing like the rosy gown.

No more modeling, soon. No more of this walking around like a doll, showing dresses with a silly smile.

"You don't think it is too pink for me?" the sallow girl in the blue fox furs asked.

Joan glanced at her, and the smile froze on her lips. Hilda. Hilda Sedgwick from Sausalito. Hilda, who lived next door to Aunt Evvie and Aunt Babe, and used to be her chum.

Hilda, finding her ..... telling everybody .....

Joan's stiff lips wouldn't form the words, "How do you do,Hilda? You didn't know I worked here, did you?" While she struggled to say them, Hilda watched fascinated, staring incredulously at first, as if she had seen a ghost. Then, with a sharp jerk at her sister's arm and a mumbled, "I don's like it after all," to Hogan, she was gone. Gone with Joan's high hopes in her stubby hands.

"Well, of all the false alarms!" Hogan patted her black boyish bob disgustedly. "Did you ever? I sized 'em up that way as soon as they set foot in the shop. Window shoppers!"

All afternoon Joan tried to think. Hilda would go straight home and tell her mother, and Mrs. Sedgwick would call on Aunt Evvie right away. Tuesday.

And then— But she never got any further in her thoughts. They stuck right there, her head ached so. There wouldn't be any future now. Aunt Evvie would do something . . . something to spoil it . . . shame her—something . . .

Throb. Throb. Throb. She wanted to snatch one of the flimy gowns she was hanging on the rack and tie it, ever so tight about her head, to stop the pain.

"Madame Francine tells me such interesting things of you! She says you are studying design."

It was Mrs. Curtis Barstow, "the nicest customer," Joan always called her. She tried to smile through the pain, because it was so nice of Mrs. Barstow to still think she was going to be a designer. But, of course, she didn't know that Aunt Evvie would put a stop to it—that it was all over—

"I've got such a headache!" she heard herself saying.

"Oh, I'm so sorry. Come have some hot tea with me. I was just going in search of some. Madame will let you come. I'm sure. Madame de Guitry, you'll let me have Miss Hastings for tea?"

Mrs. Barstow, all mink fur and violet scented motherliness, fairly pushed Joan into her waiting limousine.

"I believe we'll go home," she said. "It's so much more restful. And I can give you something for your poor head."

It was good to feel cool hands on her hot forehead. Mrs. Barstow was so nice. Joan had always admired her tremendously, her perfectly dressed white hair, her delicate, Dresden-china charm. They had often talked together for hours in the shop, about books and wild flowers and styles. She wasn't only a customer, she was a friend.

Her house was nice too. Big and airy and old-fashioned, like the old place across the bay. There was even a garden, with a hedge. And a silver tea service with elaborate scrolls and embossing, like the one she used to help Heeley clean at home!

"Stay to dinner, too," Mrs. Barstow begged. "My son is away, and I so hate to be alone. I'm such a selfish old woman. He spoils me so, I feel truly slighted when he does leave me for a night."

The headache powder had dulled the ache, and the hot tea had warmed Joan's heart. She felt better and wanted to prolong the pleasant dullness. When she went home she would have to think. Here she could just listen, while Mrs. Barstow talked.

She showed Joan pictures. Pictures of a solemn-eyed baby in a long, long, christening dress. "My son, Curtis, at seven weeks."

"IN ECLIPSE---POOR DAN" -:- -:-

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

"Let's Vote for Jack Gilbert!"

He's So Much Handsomer."

DID you know Cupid's ole nose was very, very much out of joint these days? For why, a strange and intense interest in something else is epidemic among the youngsters. And love, and romance, and "he said," and "I said," and "then HE said," are all twiddling their thumbs and yawning and scolding, while the younger world joins the older one in a vivid absorption in the coming election. The "older flapper" vote is something that's stepping out this November. You have only to tense your ears to find out that more women and girls are interested in putting in their say-so at this election of a President than at any other you and I can remember. I know scores of the young ones this side of 30 that are going to vote "this time" and who never did before; who can't wait until November—and who wish they could vote more than once!

Count the youngsters in this year, veterans of many political battles. And, though the incurably romantic girl will pipe up, "OH, IF THEY WERE ONLY BETTER LOOKING—THIS MR. HOOVER AND MR. SMITH! GIRLS—LET'S VOTE FOR JACK GILBERT!" I'm telling you that they're really thinking; that they know what they think, and that they are going to vote next month.

The scribbler of these lines could have voted long, long ago—and never did. But this year she's going to. Yes, sir! —NELL BRINKLEY.

Sayings of Mrs. Solomon

By HELEN ROWLAND

TEN RULES FOR HARD-BOILED BACHELORS

MY DAUGHTER, hear now the ten secret Commandments, which the Hard-Boiled Bachelor hath set up for himself, that he may dwell all his days in safety and single blessedness.

1. Thou shalt not COMMIT thyself; neither on paper nor in words, nor in promises, nor in presents. "Say it with flowers," with kisses, with postcards and with sweet nothings—but never with indelible ink.

2. Thou shalt not dally with eligible damsels nor weaken before alluring widows; but confine all thy devotion to frivolous flappers and misunderstood wives. For "Safety First" shall be thy motto. And no woman who looketh longingly upon a wedding-ring is safe!

HELEN ROWLAND

3. Thou shalt not telephone any woman more than once a week, and never twice upon the same day of the week; lest she come to regard thee as a "fixture" and seek to set her seal upon thee.

* * *

4. Howsoever often thou mayest lost thine heart, thou shalt not lose thine HEAD. For a man weddeth, not when he loseth his heart, but when he loseth his equilibrium.

5. Thou shalt not TELL a woman anything; neither thy thoughts, nor thy weakness, nor thy past triumphs, nor thy future hopes; thy past mistakes nor thy present income. For a little confession is a dangerous thing. And that which a woman knoweth concerning thee she will use in thine undoing.

* * *

6. Thou shalt not make love unto two women in the same house, nor in the same family, nor in the same set. For the small boy that stirreth up a wasp's nest to see what will happen is a tower of wisdom beside a man that mixeth his drinks, his flirtations and his girl friends.

* * *

7. Thou shalt not trust thyself for more than twenty minutes alone in the moonlight with any woman under seventy. For many a man now wondereth in his heart how an hour in the moonlight should have led to a life-time of bill-paying and furnace-stoking.

8. Thou shalt not be deceived by the false promises of Platonic Friendship. For by that "Game" fell the benedicts! Yea, verily, Platonic Friendship is a ship which docketh always in the harbor of Matrimony, or goeth down in a storm of reproach.

* * *

9. Thou shalt not look tenderly upon thy stenographer; neither upon the blonde nor the brunette, nor upon the beautiful, nor upon the plain. For, lo, the shortest cut to Matrimony is across the office desk!

* * *

10. Thou shalt not be TOO sure of thyself! For many a wise and wily single-footer, who hath started out to "string" a woman, hath lived to find the string transformed into a marriage-tie.

* * *

Verily, verily, these are the ten secret commandments of a Bachelor, whereby he hopeth to dwell all the days of his life in peace, liberty—and boredom—and to die with his bachelor's buttons on.

Horoscopes

Sunday, October 21

SUNDAY'S horoscope holds testimonies of astral influences making for extravagance and self-indulgence in pathways of social and domestic activities. It would be wise to safeguard the possessions against enforced outlays and also to protect the employment. The mind may be rash and rebellious, turning from orthodoxy.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of financial hazards and loss of money through extravagances or social indulgences. Safeguard the employment and keep the mind in conventional grooves.

A child born on this day may incline to self-indulgence and extravagance, with a turning of the mind from accepted tenets of belief. It may find it difficult to succeed in the employment of others.

Extravagance, the rich man's pitfall.—TUPPER.

Monday, October 22

MONDAY'S astrological chart holds hint of dark and treacherous deeds, with possible resort to litigation for regulation, although this may result unfavorably. There is sign of financial loss and ill-arranged contracts or agreements, although there are prospects of favorable change if prudence and honor prevail.

Those whose birthday it is are enjoined to establish a course of probity and straightforwardness, as deceit, fraud and ill-report may lead to unfavorable litigation and financial loss. With prudence and honor there may be a change of benefit.

A child born on this day may require early training and discipline in truth and honesty, otherwise it may find itself in many difficulties, losses and litigation. It may, however, be talented and skilful in novel ways.

Falsehood and fraud shoot up in every soil, the product of all climes.—ADDISON.

For the Lovelorn

Helpless

DEAR MISS GALE:

I have come to you for your excellent advice. I am a young girl 19 years old and I am considered good looking. I am now going around with some young men and women who want to do nothing but pet, drink and smoke. I do not do these things, and cannot stand my friend to do likewise. They are beginning to call me "goody-goody," but I try to pass over their remarks. I am going to stop going with them. I am very anxious to meet my ideal man, one who neither expects a girl to drink, smoke nor pet. I have read many letters you have printed and often I have wished I knew some of the young men personally. But I know that is impossible. Please tell me how I can help my friends?

HELPLESS.

There is little you can do to change your friends, my dear, but you can keep your own standards high. Don't be discouraged. You will meet the one man some day.

Love's Embers

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

By ADELE GARRISON

The Trap Is Sprung on the Conspirators

LILLIAN awakened me promptly at the expiration of four hours, and helped me through my dressing and breakfast as though I were a baby.

"Your father and Allen aren't stirring yet, praise be," she said. "Neither is anybody else except Katie and Jim. You'll have time to get everything done before we break the glorious news to them."

I worked fast but carefully, and long before noon, the original code message with its transcription was in my father's hands, and I had prepared a paper so closely resembling the one Princess Olina had carried that only an eye experienced in the Sumerian symbols could detect the difference.

"You really don't need to put so much work on it," Lillian said. "The gifted Sergius won't have any chance to look at it closely, but I suppose an artist must be humored."

I flushed for there was such genuine admiration in her tone that I felt humbled. It was a tone, however, which I was to hear my father's voice, in Allen Drake's and even in Dicky's, although I knew it cost my husband something to commend me for the work which he loathed having me do.

It was an intonation of remorse and horror, however, which was in Princess Olina's voice when I told her that her own mother and father were marked for death upon the code paper she had been carrying, and that the woman high in court's favor who had paid her a "fortune" for delivering a message, had herself marked her mother's name down.

"Oh! what have I done!" the girl moaned. "I thought the message was about jewels which Maryka could not get out of the country she had left."

"It is not what you have done, but what you must do," I told her sternly. "The capture of this arch plotter Sergius depends upon your coolness and courage tonight."

She drew herself to her full slender height, every inch a princess of a royal house.

"I shall not fail," she said. "Tell me exactly what I must do and I will do it."

It was my father who gave her the instructions for her actions as it was he who planned every detail of the night's work. He already had sent for trusted operatives who were waiting in a town a few miles away and to whom Dicky carried instructions as to their shadowing and seizing the accomplices of Sergius who were manning the truck and waiting in the other places of which his red-bearded associate had told Dicky. And after a dinner which none of us could eat, he summoned Olina, Lillian, Dicky, Allen Drake and myself to his rooms for our final directions. Mr. Veritzen and his powerful and faithful chauffeur, Otto, were to wait a few rods down the road at 9 o'clock, within hearing of a whistle if one were blown, but far enough away so that any possible passer might see only Otto engaged upon a pretended emergency repair to the car.

"The place," said my father, "is the flat stone in the circle of trees upon the hill. The bushes will afford shelter to Allen and Richard who will be there before 9 o'clock, the hour named by this Sergius, but not near enough for him to find them if he takes it into his head to do a little exploring. K. seven has told us that Sergius is to stay a little in the background while he asks the girl for the paper and that he will wait only to see that Petrov, as Sergius calls him, has the girl fast before starting on the run for the cabin and the car which he is to run himself. Lillian, you and Margaret are to keep behind the princess as far back as possible so that you distinguish her, so that if anyone save K. seven should seize her, you could summon Dicky and Allen back with the police whistles which you will carry. That will also be the signal for Veritzen to dash in with his car, and for Jim and me to come out. But I anticipate no trouble. I expect that a few minutes after the owl's hoot is heard, the princess will be safely back in the house—K. seven will turn her over to Margaret and Lillian as soon as he sees them, and will then help Richard and Allen with Sergius—and that this arch fiend, safely bound, will be here in this room submitting to some questioning."

I shivered a bit at the sudden steel in his voice and did not envy the lot of Sergius. But things were not to go so smoothly as my father had outlined. We carried out his instructions to the letter, and Lillian and I followed Olina's figure to the appointed rendezvous. Hidden by the bushes we saw the red-bearded man advance, and heard his guttural "You haf it." We saw him take the paper from her hand and hold it out back of him to someone who took it from him. We saw him turn back, sweep the princess from the ground in a fashion which terrified us, even though we had been expecting it, cover her head and start on a run toward the shack. Then we heard something more terifying, the sound of blows and struggling as Allen and Dickey fell upon the man, and his voice raised in awful maledictions as he realized that he had been tricked.

"A trap!" he cried hoarsely, and then, by some miracle of twisting, he freed himself and bounded forward just at the second that K. seven bearing the princess doubled on his track and ran up to us. There was the sound of a shot and K. seven stumbled and came to his knees almost at Lillian's feet. I wondered if my senses were leaving me as I heard her sharp cry of "Harry!"

How to Keep Well

By Royal S. Copeland, M. D.

Overfeeding Dulls Infant's Appetite

NO mother can be happy unless her baby is eager for food, increasing in weight, and giving every other indication of good health. The youngster's attitude towards food and its ready digestion, really measure the state of its health.

DR. COPELAND

To be hungry is the normal condition of infancy and childhood. Something is wrong when there is loss of appetite. The anxious mother runs to the doctor at once to find why the baby doesn't eat at as it has.

Gradual failure of appetite may be the only sign of trouble. The baby may look well and in other respects be quite as usual. But it does not cry for food and show its old-time eagerness.

Perhaps the first thing to be thought of in a case like this is the amount of food that has been taken every day. Perhaps it has been overfed. Babies frequently are.

Sometimes the milk is too rich. It carries too much fat, too much cream. You and I do not like dishes that are too rich in fat. Neither does the baby.

It is a great mistake to force the child to eat. After we grow up our "instincts" for eating are not to be trusted wholly. But in babyhood it is different. Appetite has not been perverted by wrong practices.

Nothing is more important in infant feeding than regularity. Under no circumstances should the child be given food except at the stated hours. Coaxing an older child to eat may possibly be proper, but a baby should not be coaxed or forced.

As a matter of fact, if there is loss of appetite there should not be more frequent feedings. On the contrary, this should be a hint to lengthen the intervals between feedings.

Of course doctors do not agree perfectly as to the frequency with which babies should eat. Perhaps the favorite rule is about as follows:

Up to four months of age, certainly until the infant weighs 12 pounds, there should be feedings every three hours, from 6 o'clock in the morning till 9 at night, and an additional feeding in the middle of the night, perhaps at 2 o'clock. This means seven feedings.

When the child has reached the age of four months and weighs 12 pounds, the middle of the night feeding may be omitted and the six others may be continued. In the 24 hours six feedings are given.

After the age of six months, or until the baby weighs 16 pounds, the interval may be increased to four hours. This gives five feedings in the 24 hours.

If there is loss of appetite, increase the interval between feedings. Reduce the total number by at least one in 24 hours. Even though a baby a year old had only three or four feedings for a few days, it would not suffer and on the contrary, the appetite is likely to be restored.

Do not fail, however, to give plenty of water. This is important to the welfare of every infant and particularly if it is "off its feed."

As I have suggested, the milk may be too rich. If so, a change in the source of supply may be greatly beneficial. I am assuming, of course, in all this discussion that we are considering the bottle-fed baby.

If the baby is breast-fed, lengthing the interval between feedings may overcome the loss of appetite. If the response is not prompt, be sure to talk with your doctor.

BLAW KNOX AT NEW HIGH MARK IN LOCAL TRADING

MAY DRUG SHARES UP ON RUMORS OF MERGER

Merger rumors and prospects of higher dividends on Blaw-Knox Company shares accompanied a renewed buying flurry in the issue on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today.

Several thousand shares were wanted when the market opened and the demand caused a quick run-up of 5 points from the opening figure at 125. The present movement had its beginning in yesterday's market when the price jumped 3 points on a few sales. The opening today at 125 was an overnight gain of 2 points and was followed by the further advance to 130 at which level the excitement died down. Directors of Blaw Knox meet Monday to set the basis of exchange of the newly authorized no-par shares for the present $25 par stock. Stockholders recently approved a capital change from 360,000 shares of $25 par to 1,500,000 shares no-par. There has been no intimation as to what number of new shares will be exchanged for the old stock, but the general impression in the street is that the basis will be three or four for one. It is also expected that higher cash dividends will be paid in proportion. The present stock is on a $3 annual basis.

May Drug also sold into new high ground in today's short session as traders heard further rumors that the May chain will be absorbed by one of the big New York drug store companies. May started its present advance from around 22 and street gossip is to the effect that any deal, if made, will see the stock going into the transaction at around 35, the lowest figure, it is said, at which those in control of May would consider negotiations.

ARKANSAS GAS LINES TO OPEN NEW SOURCE

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

THE Arkansas Natural Gas Corporation will be well fortified with reserve production when the pipe lines now under construction are completed.

An entirely new source of gas will be opened which will properly balance the supply with the distribution facilities secured when the present organization was formed by the merger of four companies.

A 10-INCH 96-mile pipe line is being laid from the company's new gas field, about five miles north of Clarksville, Arkansas, to Little Rock. When the line is completed, Little Rock will have two sources of supply, one through the new line and one through the old line to northwestern Louisiana.

FOUR strings of tools are drilling on the block of 6,000 acres which was purchased from the Empire Gas & Fuel Company last April.

The completed wells are producing gas from three entirely different structures. An output of over 55,000,000 cubic feet of gas has been secured from five wells.

The new field will amply take care of increased demands for gas as well as for future expansion.

THE Clarksville-Little Rock pipe line will also serve Conway which has given a franchise to the Public Utilities Corporation of Arkansas, a subsidiary of the Arkansas Natural Gas Corporation.

A ten-inch line from Garland City, Arkansas, to Texarkana, a distance of 20 miles, has just been completed. This supplements the existing 8-inch line which has become insufficient to meet demands during the winter months.

THE record profit of $1,228,000 reported by the Harbison-Walker Refractories Company in the quarter ended September 30, was particularly significant, because the full benefits of new low cost production methods did not contribute to it.

ABOUT a year ago an extensive modernization program was launched which included the replacement of old intermittent kilns at many of the plants with modern continuous kilns which will greatly reduce costs. Construction work on most of these is just being completed.

Future operations may be expected to show even better profits as a result of the savings to be secured by the use of the new equipment.

The entire expansion program is being completed without recourse to any outside financing. Surplus current assets have been more than ample to meet all expenses.

HARBISON-WALKER'S earnings have shown a remarkable degree of stability as well as a steady growth. The wide range of industries served with fire brick tend to eliminate violent fluctuations in sales since a depression in one type of demand may be replaced with activity at another source. Some industries also take advantage of periods of depression to reline furnaces while in the busy times they still need brick for minor repairs.

EARNINGS in the third quarter were equivalent to 82 cents a share on the 1,440,000 shares of new common stock after deducting dividends on the 6 per cent preferred stock. The old common stock was recently split on a four for one basis. The initial dividend on the new shares will be declared next month.

The old stock was on a $6 annual dividend basis which would be the eqpivalent of $1.50 a share on the new stock. In the first nine months of this year net profit was equivalent to $2.19 a share on the stock now outstanding.

THREE of the large trunk line railroads will secure about $268,629 each from their holdings of Wheeling and & Lake Erie Railway Company prior lien stock through the declaration of a dividend of 7 per cent against unpaid accumulations.

This will considerably lighten the burden on the New York Central, Nickel Plate and Baltimore & Ohio roads for carrying 3,839,800 shares each of the Wheeling & Lake Erie stock.

The stock has been held to safeguard the interests of the three carriers in possible future consolidations.

Dividends of 7 per cent have been cumulative and unpaid since November 1, 1916.

THE PRODUCE MARKET

Trading at the local wholesale produce district for practically all lines of fruit and vegetables was good and the quotations were about unchanged.

Butter was weak. Eggs and cheese were steady. No change was made in the quotations on these markets.

The poultry market was about steady, with the demand fair, supplies liberal and quotations unchanged.

Car-lot supplies were heavy, a total of 753 cars being on track. Included in the arrivals were 8 cars of apples, 4 cabbage, 1 cantaloupes, 1 celery, 1 grapefruits, 143 grapes, 1 lemons, 1 lettuce, 3 onions, 4 oranges, 7 pears, 1 cauliflower, 3 turnips, 7 potatoes, 5 tomatoes, 1 prunes, 2 peas and 2 carrots.

Chicagoans Optimistic On Business Outlook.

—By B. C. FORBES—

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.

CHICAGO'S industrial and business leaders have robust confidence not only in the outlook for the balance of this year, but in what 1929 will bring. Chicago's bankers are less confident largely because they fear Wall Street may bring on some unsettlement.

LET leaders in different industries speak for themselves. Silas H. Strawn, chairman of Montgomery, Ward & Company, observes:

"I believe business conditions are sound. From the viewpoint of a Republican, it would seem that the election of Mr. Hoover was being discounted and that our manufacturers and business men are going ahead accordingly.

"Of course, there overhangs the whole situation the very serious peril of speculation which may result in a severe shaking up of our financial structure, but unless the bubble grows beyond any anticipated proportions, I do not believe when it bursts it will permanently affect legitimate business."

FRED W. SARGENT, president Chicago Northwestern Railway, says:

"There can be no doubt that the general agricultural and industrial situation in the Northwest has materially improved since the depression that followed the war. While prices for grain are not satisfactory, yet on the other hand there have been two years of good crops and our farmers are going each year more largely to diversified production.

"The purchasing power of the Northwest territory is greatly improved. The surplus obligations have been largely liquidated and the foundation is now laid on a secure basis for an era of permanent prosperity.

"In my opinion the Northwest has turned the corner and is rapidly resuming its place of leadership in agricultural production and agricultural wealth."

OTTO H. FALK, president Allis Chalmers Manufacturing Company, observes:

"So far as the power machinery field is concerned we find business at the present time in fair shape. Economic conditions appear to be sound, new uses and applications of electricity are constantly being made and there is every reason to believe that the requirements of public utility corporations will not decrease. Inventories of all kinds are comparatively small, which should help to produce a steady demand for manufactured products. So far as I can see there would seem to be good reason to expect sound and steady business in the coming months."

WILLIAM WRIGLEY, Jr., whose business brings him into intimate touch with the whole country, states:

"My experience is that business is in a very satisfactory condition throughout the United States. Nineteen twenty-eight, up to date, has been a very successful year."

LOUIS F. SWIFT, president of Swift and Company, thus reads the outlook:

"There is good reason to be optimistic about business. Most large industries are operating at a high rate and from reports we have received they are expecting to continue active for some time. The meat packing industry is enjoying better conditions than it has for some time.

"The present rate of interest is having a conservative influence on business, but does not seem to be causing serious concern—at least for the near future. Commodity prices are showing strength and farm purchasing power is good. The presidential election is not a disturbing factor this year and business men in general are optimistic. The country has achieved a remarkable degree of business stability in late years.

"I have confidence that the future holds great promise."

ALL of which is encouraging. Is it not?

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—Much lower wheat quotations today at Liverpool than were looked for, led to an early downturn in wheat prices here. Liverpool weakness was ascribed to predictions of large world shipments. Rains in dry sections of India and to selling from Australia. Opening 3c to ¾c off, Chicago wheat later showed additional declines. Corn, oats and provisions as well as wheat all underwent downturns with corn starting ¼c to 1c lower and subsequently continuing to sag.

Declines in wheat prices here today quickly carried the market down to the bottommost level touched this week. The downward trend, resulting from increased weakness at Liverpool, was in disregard of assertions that owing to over-estimates of wasteful usage, the wheat carryovers from most large crops in the past have turned out to be a good deal smaller than expected. The fact was also more or less ignored that the new domestic winter wheat crop is starting out in poorer condition than the good showing the latest previous crop entered the winter.

Favorable weather over the corn belt today, together with wheat weakness, had a decided bearish effect at times on the corn market. Reports of excellent shipping demand, however, and scantiness of corn receipts here today, only 31 cars, helped to bring about price rallies.

The following quotations on the Chicago Board of Trade are reported by A. E. Masten & Co.:

STOCK MARKET PRICES TURN IRREGULAR

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Intensive readjustments of speculative accounts imparted an irregular price trend to the opening of today's stock market. International Nickel, which scored a spectacular advance yesterday, fell back 4 points on the first sale, General Motors 1½ and Radio 1. Curtiss opened 2½ points higher and Greene Cananea Copper and American Machine and Foundry each advanced about a point. Dunhill International, Mathieson Alkali and Anaconda Copper moved into new high ground.

Speculators for the advance quickly obtained control of the price movement, lifting a score of issues to new high records in almost bewildering fashion. Trading continued on an enormous scale, blocks of 1,000 to nearly 15,000 shares changing hands at frequent intervals.

Week-end letters of leading commission houses continued to urge caution in the making of new commitments, and in several cases suggesting profit-taking. Pools, having succeeded in obtaining a wide public following, continued to press their advantage.

International nickel, which opened 4 points lower at 180, quickly ran up to 187, jumping from 184 to 187 between sales. Mullins Corporation ran up 7 points. One block of 14,000 shares of Barnsdall A changed hands at 44⅞, followed in a few minutes by a block of 11,300 at 45 and then a further advance to 45¾, up 1¾ and a new high record.

New peak prices also were registered by National Tea, American Smelting, American Express, Murray Corporation, Kroger Stores, Johns-Manville and Simmons Company, the gains ranging from fractions to 4 points. Packard was in brisk demand at higher prices, but Hupp and Hudson turned reactionary.

Foreign exchanges opened steady, with sterling cables slightly lower at $4.84 15-16.

FISHER FAVORS ROAD BONDS ALONE

HARRISBURG, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Gov. Fisher is of an open mind regarding the $50,000,000 highway bond issue but is inclined to feel the other [illegible] for welfare and forestry purposes, State College and armories, are unnecessary because of the present healthy condtion of the state treasury.

A $25,000,000 surplus at least in the general fund at the end of the present biennium added to the incoming revenue, is sufficient guarantee of caring for the existent needs of the causes covered in the four latter proposals, he said.

This and the information that either a bond issue or increased motor or gasoline taxes would be necessary to continue the highway program of the state, were contained in an open letter the Goverorn wrote to Alba B. Johnson, president of the state chamber of commerce, made public here.

The letter broke the long noncommittal attitude of the Fisher administration regarding the various loans by which it is propsed to borrow a total of $138,000,000 for state expenditure.

Until he received a letter from Johnson asking him to furnish the public with the facts so that they might vote intelligently on the loans at the presidential election next month, the Governor said his administration would follow "a policy of non-interference.

Although the letter did not say so in so many words, it was generally interpreted by his friends and associates at the capitol as meaning he was opposed to the forestry, welfare, State College and armories bond issues. They quoted as proof of their argument that portion of the letter in which the Governor said:

"As bearing upon the ability of the state to carry on the several functions touched by the foregoing proposed bond issues, I would say that a careful estimate by the fiscal officers and budget secretary warrant me in saying that there will be a net surplus in the general fund at the close of the present biennium of not less than $25,000,000."

In regard to the welfare fund issue, the governor said "we can provide all the money from the general fund necessary to continue the program of repairing as rapidly as can be done to conform to good business" and that sufficient funds will be available for enlargement of the state forests "as rapidly as it will be physically possible" to negotiate for the purchase of additional lands.

He also said he was prepared to include in the budget for the next two years a sufficient appropriation to provide State College with "a building program on even a greater scale," than during the last two years and the present considerable building program for armories "can be continued from the general fund" also during the next biennium.

Continuance of the highway program, however, presents a different situation in that funds for new roads are not taken from general revenues but from motorists alone in the form of gasoline and license tax. "The highway program," he said, "faces a serious financial situation. Additional money must be found either by a new bond issue or by an increase of revenue, or the activities of the department will be seriously hampered."

Parents Visiting Tech See an Amazing School

Parents' Day is being observed at Carnegie Institute of Technology, the program, beginning with an address of welcome by President Thomas H. Baker, including activities that extend from nine in the morning until midnight. Guests are parents of freshmen students of the institution.

This event, now an annual affair at Tech, gives parents of students an inside view of one of the amazing seats of learning. An infant, compared to the older schools of higher education, Tech, in a few years, has become as firmly established as any, as important as the most noted and solidly grounded culturally as the highest, as far as its curriculum extends.

The remarkable growth of this institution is high testimony to its worth. Its roll of students and alumni is international.

The first year of the activities of Tech, 1905-06, the faculty numbered 42 on full time and 14 on part time. The student enrollment was 158 day, and 607 night, a total of 765. In the present year there are registered 2,449 day, 3,454 night and 260 part time students, a total of 6,163. The present faculty numbers 268 on full time and 90 on part time.

Tech, one of the youngest of the larger institutions of learning, has become one of the greatest.

Bar to Watch Ballot As Guard Against Fraud

The elections fraud committee of the Allegheny County Bar Association announces that it will be prepared to aid in the prosecution of ballot fraud cases which may develop in the November election. It promises the same co-operation and help to District Attorney Gardner that it gave in the many cases of corruption revealed in the primary of September, last year.

It is hoped there will be no need for the services of this committee this year. Developments in recent elections have shown the ballot crook that the people will not tolerate cheating any more. Fear has entered his heart and likely will act as a deterrent to his crimes until the people become less watchful than they are at present.

The announcement of the bar committee, nevertheless, will serve the purpose of showing dishonest elections officers and others that they will be watched. The committee will welcome information from any citizen that has a bearing on the detection of any vote cheater.

The Awesome Soesoehoenan of Java

Earl D. Babst Could Tell About Him.

A ROYAL WEDDING IN JAVA.

Strange, interesting country is far-off Soerakarta, where the Soesoehoenan "rules" and imagines himself a king. He and his people are actually ruled by a Dutch Governor, representing the Queen of Holland. Holland owns the country.

This picture shows a wedding in the royal family of the Soesoehoenan. The groom, very "low-necked" as to costume, goes through elaborate ceremonies and so does his wife, before the wedding. You see them in this picture holding hands affectionately. That's ONE thing that seems to happen everywhere.

The costumes of this bridal party represent all that is grand, luxurious and mysterious, in the highest circles of Java. Every ornament has its particular meaning. Not so long ago, everybody in this royal circle, including even the two cunning little girls sitting in front, might have put to death any one of the common run of the Javanese on a mere whim.

That can't be done now, for the Governor from Holland would say, "No, we need them to WORK."

Some magazine editor should ask Earl D. Babst to tell how these Javanese do work, and how they live. Not long ago, visiting the sugar producing countries of the world, to learn about sugar production at first hand, Mr. Babst visited Java and on his return told friends interesting things about the gentle natives, and the intensity with which they cultivate and HARVEST THEIR CROPS.

For instance, contrast the methods of gathering grain crops of the United States and Java.

Here we have machines drawn by tractors, able to cut dozens of acres in a day. You look with pity upon a man swinging a scythe by hand power.

In Java they haven't even scythes, but mow and cut the grass or grain with little sharp knives, bending over, cutting one handful of grass at a time.

And still they live, and they are quite contented.

If you produced modern agricultural machinery among them, you probably would frighten the gentle Javanese out of their wits.

That happened in Russia when the International Harvester Company first sent agricultural machinery with snorting engines to work on the wide Russian fields.

Mr. Harold McCormick tells how his company's thoughtful agent, to reassure the ignorant, superstitious peasants, persuaded their priest of the Orthodox Greek Church, to stand in the field close to the engine when it started, and telling the peasants there was nothing to fear.

The good priest did so, but the moment the engine started with a terrible snort, he, the reassuring one, was first over the fence and out of the field.

Now That They Understand Each Other—

Bible Passages

Sermon of Faith

(Hebrews 2: 1-16)

THEREFORE we ought to give the more earnest heed to the things which we have heard, lest at any time we should let them slip.

For if the word spoken by angels was stedfast, and every transgression and disobedience received a just recompence of reward;

How shall we escape, if we neglect so great salvation; which at the first began to be spoken by the Lord, and was confirmed unto us by them that heard him;

God also bearing them witness, both with signs and wonders, and with divers miracles, and gifts of the Holy Ghost, according to his own will?

For unto the angels hath he not put in subjection the world to come, whereof we speak.

But one in a certain place testified, saying, What is man, that thou art mindful of him? or the son of man, that thou visitest him?

Thou madest him a little lower than the angels; thou crownedst him with glory and honour, and didst set him over the works of thy hands:

Thou hast put all things in subjection under his feet. For in that he put all in subjection under him, he left nothing that is not put under him. But now we see not yet all things put under him.

But we see Jesus, who was made a little lower than the angels for the suffering of death, crowned with glory and honour; that by the grace of God should taste death for every man.

For it became him, for whom are all things, and by whom are all things, in bringing many sons unto glory, to make the captain of their salvation perfect through sufferings.

For both he that sanctifieth and they who are sanctified are all of one: for which cause he is not ashamed to call them brethren.

Saying, I will declare thy name unto my brethren, in the midst of the church will I sing praise unto thee.

And again, I will put my trust in him. And again, Behold I and the children which God hath given me.

Forasmuch then as the children are partakers of flesh and blood, he also himself likewise took part of the same; that through death he might destroy him that had the power of death, that is, the devil;

And deliver them who through fear of death were all their lifetime subject to bondage.

For verily he took not on him the same nature of angles; but he took on him the seed of Abraham.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

This Is a Sacred Duty

WHERE do you wish to be buried?

Gives you a shock to consider this question, does it not?

Like making wills, this should be given consideration, however.

If you should die suddenly, do members of your family know where you would like to be laid at rest?

Maybe you would like to be taken back to the old home town cemetery.

You may not be particular where you are buried.

But you should want to have a place reserved for you and those members of your family whom you wish to be placed near you.

You may not be particular as to the place, but some of your family may have a preference.

Therefore, the matter should be talked over sensibly, and plans made and a cemetery lot reservation selected.

It is not enough to say that any old place would suit you.

Nor is it kind to be insistent upon a place which is strongly opposed by others in your family.

If the matter is settled now it may save time and additional pain when it becomes necessary to use a burial place.

MOONLIGHT MADNESS

By Garrett P. Serviss

"What truth, if any, is there in the stories told about it being dangerous to lie in the moon's rays? Have been told repeatedly not to do so, as it distorts the features and affects the mind. Men who have sailed the China Sea say they have actually seen men's faces so distorted after sleeping on deck in the strong moonlight, and all sailors who go there for the first time are warned not to do it. Also, is it true that lunatics are so called because they are affected by the moon? I love to sleep outdoors, but since being told this am really afraid.—Mrs. D. O., New York."

ONE should think twice before disputing with the jolly sailor men about the signs and wonders of the China Sea. The world owes too much to the stimulating powers of that sea upon the imagination of good story tellers to be over hasty in decrying its legends. Anything may happen where

"The sun comes up like thunder outer China 'crost the bay."

Yet one may timorously suggest that sleeping faces viewed in the moonlight, through the moral atmosphere of that typhoon-haunted sea, might naturally look a little disturbed as if by uneasy dreams. Full moonlight anywhere has an apparently transforming effect upon the human countenance, an illusion due to the unwonted ghostlike tone that it imparts to the face and the unusual shadows that it throws upon cheek and brow, and into the hollows of the eyes. I have myself seen some startling effects of this kind produced by good American moonlight in an altogether commonplace atmosphere and machine-made surroundings.

But once, I was awakened by the full moon shining straight into my face through a wide-open window as I lay in bed in the romantic old town of Toledo, Spain, and I confess that I then recalled with a shiver the old legend about "lunatics" and hastily drew the curtain.

But there is nothing more perilous to the intelligence than prejudice, based upon the false belief that the obiter dicta of modern science always express the absolute and final truth. Science has not yet got so far. It stands in the shoes of the "philosophy" that Hamlet challenged concerning the things in heaven and earth that it had not even dreamt of. The legend about the influence of the moon's rays is as old as anything recorded of human belief. We say it is mere superstition, and I am disposed to think that it is so. Yet we have the almost universal testimony of people of all times and of all races that strange and curious effects sometimes appear to arise from long exposure to the uninterrupted light of the moon. Whatever mental influence it may exert, is indirect, like that of the stars.

We have certain facts about the physical influence of light of different qualities—different colors and wave lengths—which might be correlated with these legends about moonlight, but, on the other hand, analyzed moonlight shows complete spectroscopic identity with sunlight. It is sunlight reflected to us from the lunar surface, with no apparent change due to any lunar atmosphere; but it is subdued sunlight, and it is yellower than sunlight. Moreover, we know that there is a perceptible lunar effect upon the magnetism of the earth. To assert, dogmatically, that this has any influence upon human beings would be unjustifiable; as it would also be unjustifiable to assert, dogmatically, that it has absolutely no such influence. At best it could only be extremely slight. In a word I should not let fear of the moonlight drive me to sleep indoors if I liked to sleep outdoors, and I should dread cold, damp, draughts, etc., far more than any lunatic rays from the moon.

Tales That Are Told

Safety First!

"NO, SIR," said the barber; "I used to give credit, but I don't now. In fact, nobody ever asks for it."

"Why is that?" asked the customer.

"Well, you see, sir," the barber explained, "I once had a number of customers who used to ask me to chalk it up, and they kept me waiting so long that I got tired of keeping books and adopted a new system. When I shaved one of them I put a little nick in his nose with my razor, and kept tally that way. It was wonderful how soon they came back to the old plan of paying for each shave at once."

There was a tremor in the customer's voice as he asked, from beneath the lather:

"Do you object to being paid in advance?"

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

HUSBANDS tell more truth, I reckon, than any other class of workers. But they don't get credit for it. Somebody invented the idea that husbands always lie to their wives, and that's that. They always do lie, according to the stories.

Well, this guy Brown was saying to his wife that it was going to be a pretty busy day.

"I may have to stay downtown for the evening; I don't know," he said. "But anyhow, if I do, I'll get a messenger boy and send you a note."

"Well," she says, "I can save you the expense of sending it. I found the note in your pocket this morning, when I was changing the things from one suit to another. It says you are unexpectedly detained for a conference, so that's all right."

Blue of the Sky After Rain

CAN you tell just what is the loveliest hue
In the realm of the arching sky?
Does it come with dusk or with morning dew,
When the larks go winging by?

Do you find its glow in the sunset gold
That lies scattered along the west,
Or up where the flowers of dawn unfold
Past the snow of the mountain's crest?

Of all colors celestial for man's rapt gaze,
Of all tints without blemish or stain,
The fairest is found down the wind-swept ways
Of the blue of the sky after rain!

New York Day by Day

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Telephoning across the Atlantic has become casual. It has passed the novel experimental stage and so heavy are the demands one must wait from four to six hours to get a call through to London, Paris, Berlin, Stockholm and other European centers.

The foreign exchange in New York is able to take care of only 60 calls a day, due to the fact there is only one contact, but the capacity is now being doubled and will be tripled soon. Two operators handle the calls in New York. Each speaks four languages.

A dozen or more people are awakened in New York every morning with such an announcement as "London calling." And it is a rather thrilling experience to pick up the receiver and hear exchange girls in France or Germany speaking their native tongue while putting the call through.

Strangely enough, the majority of calls are not of a business nature. They are inspired chiefly by sentiment—the romancing of separated lovers. For instance, almost every motion picture player abroad calls up a boy friend or girl friend in Hollywood. They would.

The biggest revenue comes from this icky-oockie chatter. And the cost is no greater than throwing a party at a Broadway night club. Conversation across the Atlantic for some reason or other is heard even more distinctly than that within a city's limits.

A man in New York the other day was talking in the early morning hours to a friend at the Savoy in London and heard Big Ben booming the hour. The greatest blessing over-ocean telegraph service has conferred so far is its balm for homesickness.

Young folk in boarding schools abroad are able to call up parents now and then, and just to hear familiar voices of loved ones banishes nostalgia.

A man about town recently underwent a major operation in one of the hospitals. Five hours after coming out from under the influence of the anaesthetic a friend was admitted and found the patient puffing at a big black cigar.

"After years of bootleg liquor," he grinned, "it takes more than a whiff of ether to upset my stomach."

In a big office building the other late evening a charwoman found a girl's hat, coat and purse in a locker. Later, passing a vault, she heard a faint knocking at the door. Help was summoned and the vault opened. On the floor was a semi-conscious filing clerk. It developed she had gone into the vault 90 minutes before, a window draft had blown the door shut and the lock clicked. Most vaults, however, prepare for this emergency by installing a telephone directly connected to an outside exchange, so in case telephone service in the building has been cut off, a prisoner may secure assistance.

Two brash and flirtatious young men in a week have been carried to hospitals, feet up, with fissured skulls. In each instance, they accosted lone women in public parks and gallant defenders came to the rescue. New York stands for much, but the flirt here courts disaster. The man who makes advances, even on Broadway, where nothing much matters, except paying the check, is in danger. Scarcely a night passes without some row inspired by flirtations.

Nor does anthing tickle Broadway so much as a lady busily engaged in giving a gentleman a black eye. This rather primitive pastime is almost a nightly affair in, redundantly speaking, speak-easies and night clubs.

FIGHTING IDEAS

By Dr. Frank Crane

A story is told of a crowd gathered around a speaker in Trafalgar Square, London. The police were protecting him. An American asked an English bystander what the row was about.

"Oh," said the Englishman, "he's attackin' the Royal family and the Bobbies are protectin' him."

We have found out in these days of democracy that about the best way to deal with a disturber of the peace is to give him a hall and a chance to speak. For a Bolshevist or a class maniac to have full liberty to express his ideas is suicidal. He thrives upon repression.

In that strange town of London, the strange inhabitant Britishers are doing a strange thing.

On one corner the Socialist book store sells, to everyone who will buy, volumes spreading the doctrine of Socialism.

Around the corner a group of men have established an anti-Socialist book store, which sells books fighting tooth and nail the ideas of its rival.

It would be interesting to know what Geoffrey Chaucer, of Canterbury Tales fame, would think of this arrangement.

In his day, five centuries ago, men had a far different idea of the way to settle disputed points than by a battle of books.

Included in the meager details of his recorded life is an account of his being robbed twice on the same day by the same two men.

The culprits were captured, each declared himself innocent and said the other had committed the robbery.

Justice seemed at a standstill until a brilliant idea of the judge settled the question with manifest justice to all.

The two men were given clubs.

The one who knocked the other unconscious was innocent.

The one who was knocked down was hanged.

It has taken a good many centuries to disentangle, even partially, justice from brute force, to see that physical strength and moral right are not synonymous.

The skeins are still snarled in international relations.

But progress has been made.

What would have been a joke a few hundred years ago is accepted as a serious proposition in 1928 London.

Fighting ideas on the plane of ideas is becoming more common.

Settling the justice of an affront by two men shooting bullets at each other has little standing in civilized society today.

The most ignorant and unfit to lead are always the most disposed to violence. They find it easier to use their fists than their heads successfully and follow the path of least resistance.

Supplanting the rival bludgeons with rival ideas and bashed heads with books is the work of civilization.

OH, THESE WOMEN

By Leola Allard

A YOUNG married man went to the police station and wanted to know what he could do about a wife who refused to get his Sunday dinner, who said she was going to leave him and told him where he could go.

A police officer parked the husband outside his own home and he went in and talked to the girl. In a little while the wife came out and threw her arms around the husband's neck and laughed happily. The officer was a bachelor.

Maybe that's what is wrong with marriage. The right men for it stay single.

In California where people are always delightfully original, a man gets a divorce because his wife is in love with "the entire navy." "She has a sweetheart on every ship," the husband testified. And the girl smiled.

The judge gave him a divorce and her the freedom of the seas, which the husband said would make her happy.

"If we could just fly away some place together.' For a thousand years men have been saying it, but this year they are doing it. A lady in—California again—asks a divorce and damages because a young woman furnished the plane with which she and the lady's husband "flew away."

The girls buy the single men automobiles which are safe enough, but when they are married men they give them planes, and crawl into the back seat.

Three wives sued their husbands yesterday, asking for divorce, one because the husband read the kind of books he liked, which were not high-brow enough for the wife; one because he chose his own neckties and they were loud, and one because he had bad manners.

The poor soul who couldn't even buy the kind of ties he liked, with the money he earned, said: "I didn't think they were loud. I thought they were just colorful."

What if they were loud? Wouldn't you like to see him try to tell her what to wear. If the judge is as understanding as most divorce judges, he will give the lady a divorce for the husband's sake. It's been done before.

Rehearsing a love scene for opera, Marie Jeritza fell violently into the arms of Edward Johnson, and they both fell to the floor. Which reminds one of what so many women do figuratively.

Mr. Johnson was substituting for Gennaro Barra, who, the press agent says, "Slipped in his tub and wrenched his ankle."

You don't suppose the lovely Jeritza will have to have extras, like Dempsey does in his picture play, so that when one falls another can be hurried in?

Only a Dog!

THAT was a singularly repellant crime charged against the chief of police of Northfield, N. J., the other day. He killed a dog because he said it was unleashed and unmuzzled, and it was his duty to kill it.

If that was all there was to the case it would scarcely be worth publishing. But the dog was the pet of two little girls of five years, on whose birthday it was born. The chief of police shot it with his pistol in the morning, but it did not die and the children nursed it through the day. In the evening he fired a shotgun at the wounded animal, blowing off a leg, but not inflicting death immediately. Finally, he tied the dog to a tree and ended its life.

What a perverted sense of duty such a person must have.
